

Contents

Preface	x
Table of statutes	xiii
Introduction	i
I Setting the bounds of law-and-society	4
1.1 Taking law seriously	4
1.2 From analytical jurisprudence to law-and-society	7
1.3 Hart on social explanation	13
1.4 Beyond Hart	15
1.5 From law-and-society back to analytical jurisprudence	18
1.6 Elements of a modern legal order	20
Notes	22
2 Approaches to law in society	27
2.1 Understanding law in society	27
2.2 The subject of study in law-and-society	28
2.3 The aims of law-and-society	32
2.4 Four methodological principles	34
2.5 Law as a closed system	38
Notes	43
3 Law as social rules	47
3.1 Introduction	47
3.2 Hart's approach to law as social rules	47
3.3 Nature of social rules	50
3.4 Contextual contingencies of social rules	53
3.5 Three types of rules	55
3.6 Defending rules	58
3.7 Strengthening the case for contextual contingencies	61
3.8 Social rules and modern legal systems	63
Notes	65
4 Law prior to rules	70
4.1 From rules to rulings to acts	70
4.2 Case of the common law	75
4.3 Rules and modern legal orders	79
Notes	80

5	Law as a system of rules	84
5.1	The rules of recognition	84
5.2	What kind of rule is the rule of recognition?	86
5.3	Acceptance and the reasons for acceptance	88
5.4	Reasons for acceptance: is modern law special?	91
5.5	Variable acceptance of rules	94
5.6	From the rule of recognition to specific laws	96
5.7	Conclusion about law as social rules	97
	Notes	99
6	Social spheres	103
6.1	Introducing social spheres	103
6.2	Concept of a social sphere	104
6.3	Foundations of social spheres	105
6.4	Social spheres as distinct and separate	109
6.5	Density of social spheres	111
6.6	Social spheres and social explanation	111
6.7	Why do we create social spheres?	113
6.8	A more fundamental role for social-spheres	115
	Notes	117
7	The reception of law	121
7.1	Variables in the reception of law	121
7.2	Categories of laws	122
7.3	Officials	125
7.4	Bringing back the people	128
7.5	Officials and the people: the terms of delegation	130
7.6	Reception of law through social spheres	132
7.7	The architecture of law	135
7.8	Legal environment	136
7.9	Law confronting social spheres	137
	Notes	139
8	Law and coercion	142
8.1	The Background to coercion	142
8.2	The classic depiction of coercion in law	143
8.3	Hart's revision of the place of coercion	145
8.4	Revising the revision: a social explanation of coercion	147
8.5	Duty-imposing laws and the role of coercion	148
8.6	Private arrangements, power-conferring rules, and coercion	151

8.7	Conclusions concerning coercion	154
	Notes	155
9	Legal pluralism: parallel legal orders	158
9.1	Dominance of state law	158
9.2	From state law to legal pluralism	161
9.3	Parallel and intersecting legal orders	163
9.4	Social consequences of parallel legal orders	167
	Notes	170
10	Extended legal pluralism: informal legal orders	173
10.1	Extended legal pluralism	173
10.2	Three concerns about legal centralism	175
10.3	Social spheres subordinate to state law	175
10.4	Balance of state law and social spheres	178
10.5	The elusive legal element in legal pluralism	180
10.6	Legal pluralism, social relations, and law's authority	183
	Notes	188
11	Does law have social functions?	193
11.1	From social functions to social value	193
11.2	Functions in legal theory and social explanation	195
11.3	Functions of rules	199
11.4	Substantive functions of legal rules	200
11.5	Maintaining social order	203
11.6	Defining the legal order and legal relations	207
11.7	Pursuit of social goods	209
	Notes	210
12	The social value of law	213
12.1	Assessing law's social value	213
12.2	Need for central legal authority	214
12.3	Law's capacity	217
12.4	Securing private relations	220
12.5	Security of person and property: the criminal law	225
12.6	Provision of services	229
12.7	Regulatory laws	231
12.8	Restrainig officials	234
12.9	Sustaining legal authority	236
12.10	Conclusion	237
	Notes	238

13	Form of modern legal orders	242
13.1	Distinctiveness of modern legal orders	242
13.2	Social relations in modern legal orders	244
13.3	Normative structure of modern legal orders	245
13.4	Matching normative structure and social relations	249
13.5	Support of officials	250
13.6	Supporting ideals: the rule of law	253
13.7	Instabilities	257
	Notes	263
 14	 Social foundations of modern legal form	 266
14.1	Accounting for the form of law	266
14.2	From trust to rules to law	268
14.3	Private interests and the state	270
14.4	Interests of the state: ruling over diversity	272
14.5	From privilege to equality	274
14.6	Dynamics of government administration	276
14.7	Seeds of self-restraint	278
14.8	Foundations of the rule of law in modern legal orders	280
14.9	Competing explanations	282
14.10	Socialization of the rule of law	284
14.11	Evolution from within: law as a source of the legal form	287
	Notes	289
 15	 Implementation and the architecture of law	 293
15.1	Introducing implementation	293
15.2	Implementation by officials	295
15.3	Architecture of law	299
	Notes	307
 16	 Implementation: the legal and social environment	 310
16.1	The legal environment of implementation	310
16.2	Creating legal environments	312
16.3	Authorized discretion	317
16.4	Unauthorized discretion	319
16.5	From legal environment to social context	320
	Notes	327
 17	 Change through law: the contours of compliance	 331
17.1	Using law to change society	331

17.2	Framework of compliance	333
17.3	Legal consciousness	335
17.4	A settled disposition to comply with the law	339
17.5	Legal architecture again	340
17.6	Dealing with the legal environment	342
17.7	Strength of the legal environment	346
17.8	Density of social spheres as a variable	347
17.9	Dealing with the law	350
17.10	Conclusion	353
	Notes	354
	 Bibliography	 359
	Index	375