

Contents

Acknowledgments	page ix
Introduction	1
1 Religion as ideology	5
Hegelian metaphysics	5
Hegel's philosophy of religion	13
The essence of religion	18
Marx: his life and early writings	23
Historical materialism	35
Religion and class structure	44
2 Religion as theodicy	51
Weberian sociology	51
The Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism	61
Weber's sociology of religion	68
Comparative studies	79
Weber and Marx	87
3 The anthropological tradition	91
The intellectualists: Müller, Spencer, Tylor, Frazer	91
Durkheim's sociology	106
Elementary Forms of the Religious Life	111
Religion and society	122
Cosmology and social structure	131
4 Religion and psychology	141
Religion and emotions	141
Freud's biological theory of meaning	151
Totem and taboo	155
Jung: biographical notes	163
Religion and the collective unconscious	167
Religion as archetype	174
5 Religion: meaning and function	182
Lévy-Bruhl	182
Anthropology and history	186

Animals, anomalies, and abominations	203
The interpretation of symbols	218
Ritual symbolism and social structure	235
The ritual process	246
6 Religious thought: structure and hermeneutics	264
Lévi-Strauss and totemism	264
The savage mind	278
Modes of thought	291
Religion as culture	312
Structural Marxism	319
Selected monographs for further reading	329
References	341
Index	359