

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
List of Maps	x
Preface	xi
Introduction: 'Battle of Kursk' or 'Battle between Orel and Belgorod'?	xiv
1 The Strategic Context: The Preparations for the Summer Battle, 1943	17
The Strategic Situation of the German Reich in Spring 1943	17
German Strategic Considerations on the Eastern Front, 1943	20
German Operational Planning, Spring 1943	24
The Postponement of the Attack	30
The Struggle for Qualitative Superiority on the Battlefield	38
German Operational Planning for Citadel	51
Soviet Preparations for the Battle of Kursk	60
Intelligence and Espionage Prior to Operation Citadel	67
The Correlation of Forces on the Eve of the Battle	74
2 The Bulge of Fire: The Battles of Kursk, Orël and Khar'kov in Summer 1943	81
The Probing Attack by XXXXVIII Panzer Corps, 4 July 1943	81
The Soviet Counter-Preparations during the Night of 4-5 July 1943	83
The Air Battle over the Kursk Salient, 5 July 1943	89
The Attack of the Ninth Army on Kursk	95
The Assault of Army Detachment Kempf East of Belgorod	113
The Tank Battle at Prokhorovka, 12 July 1943	121
The Abandonment of the German Offensive against Kursk	129
Operation Kutuzov : The Soviet Offensive at Orël	136
Operation Polkovodets Rumyantsev : The Soviet Offensive at Khar'kov	143
3 A Battle of Attrition: Consequences of the Summer Battles in 1943	151
The Outcome of the Battle of Kursk and the Tally of Losses	151
The Significance of the Battle of Kursk for German Reich and USSR	165

4	Lost Memories: The Battle of Kursk in Post-War Historiography	169
	The Battle of Kursk in the Memoirs of German Military Leaders	169
	The Battle of Kursk in Soviet/Russian Historiography	174
	Epilogue: The Place of the Battle of Kursk in History	179
	Bibliography	183
	Index	198