

Contents

Introduction	vii
Acknowledgments	xv
Notes on the contributors	xvi
1 Greek and Latin Linguistics	1
Peter Matthews
1.1 Introduction	1
1.1.1 The term ‘grammar’	1
1.1.2 The sources	4
1.2 Phonetics and phonology	9
1.3 The status and origin of words	15
1.3.1 The argument of ‘Cratylus’	16
1.3.2 The origin and nature of language	21
1.4 Elements of the sentence	25
1.4.1 The philosophical context	26
1.4.2 The theory of parts of speech	29
1.4.3 Canonical schemes	38
1.5 The prehistory of grammar	43
1.5.1 The analysis of the Stoics	44
1.5.2 Linguistic norm	49
1.5.3 The Alexandrian scholars	53
1.6 Grammars under the Empire	67
1.6.1 Analysis of texts	68
1.6.2 The theoretical model of the grammarians	96
Notes	108
Abbreviations	125
References	126
Ancient	126
Modern	128
Additional References	132

2 Medieval Linguistics	134
Edoardo Vineis and Alfonso Maierù
2.1 Introduction Edoardo Vineis	134
2.2 Linguistics and grammar Edoardo Vineis	136
2.2.1 Schools and centres of culture from Late Antiquity to the Carolingian Renaissance	136
2.2.2 Schools and centres of culture from the Carolingian Renaissance to the threshold of Humanism	142
2.2.3 Knowledge of the Latin grammarians in the various areas of Europe	147
2.2.4 Boethius, Cassiodorus and Isidore of Seville	150
2.2.5 Julianus Toletanus and the beginnings of the early medieval grammatical tradition up to the works of Virgil the grammarian	158
2.2.6 'Elementary grammarians' and 'exegetic grammars' up to the Carolingian Renaissance	165
2.2.7 The tenth–twelfth century commentaries on Donatus and Priscian: first indications of the appearance of a speculative grammar Doctrinale and the Grecismus	176
2.2.9 Lexicographic activity	181
2.2.10 Grammars for the teaching of Latin written in other languages: the example of Aelfric	184
2.2.11 The grammatical description of languages other than Latin	185
2.2.12 Elements of synchronic descriptions of the different local pronunciations of Latin inferable from medieval Latin grammars	186
Notes	189
2.3 The philosophy of language Alfonso Maierù	197
2.3.1 Platonism in the early Middle Ages	272
2.3.2 Aristotelianism in the eleventh and twelfth centuries	272
2.3.3 The grammar of the Modistae	279
2.3.4 Critics of the Modistae	288
Notes	302
Bibliographical references	306
Editions	316
Studies	316
Index	324
	347