

Contents

|                       | page |
|-----------------------|------|
| Introduction          | iv   |
| Watch and learn!      | 1    |
| Let's talk now!       | 6    |
| Say it!               | 10   |
| Young love!           | 14   |
| We're not going away! | 22   |
| Activities            | 32   |

The plays in this book are about young people, their friends, families, hobbies and problems. You can read the plays at home or with other students. Imagine that you are the people in the play. You can show feelings with your voice. Say your words angrily, happily or sadly. You can talk about the plays too. What do you think about them? Do you like the people in them? Why? Why not? What do you think about their problems? Do you have these problems too? What do you do about them?

You can act the plays and bring in your life. You can imagine the school, sports, phones, cars and other things. Or you can bring things into the classroom. You must act when you talk. You must show your feelings when you don't talk too. But, of course, you can have fun. Acting is great fun!

Tanya Droppe, the writer of these plays, has a school. The students at the school learn to act in English. The students helped her with the plays. They wrote them together. They acted the plays in a theatre and invited their friends and families. Everybody enjoyed the plays. They had fun. We hope that you enjoy them too.