

Contents

List of figures and tables	v
Notes on contributors	vii
Introduction	I
Isabelle Albert and Dieter Ferring
Part I: Conceptual issues regarding intergenerational relations	13
one Demographic ageing, labour market regulation and intergenerational relations	15
Amílcar Moreira
two Intergenerational solidarity in families: interplay between the family and the state	25
Kairi Kasearu and Dagmar Kutsar
three Intergenerational ambivalence: beyond solidarity and conflict	39
Kurt Lüscher and Andreas Hoff
four Intergenerational policy and the study of intergenerational relationships: a tentative proposal	65
Kurt Lüscher
Part II: Multigenerational and cross-cultural perspectives	83
five Intergenerational congruence of attachment: limitations of findings	85
Katarzyna Lubiewska
six Value transmission between parents and their adolescent children: the process and its outcomes. A psycho-social perspective	101
Daniela Barni, Rosa Rosnati and Sonia Ranieri
seven Value orientations and perception of social change in post-communist Romania	119
Mihaela Friedlmeier and Alin Gavreliuc
eight Intergenerational conflict: the case of adult children and their parents	131
Beate Schwarz
nine Grandparent-grandchild relations in a changing society: different types and roles	147
Isabelle Albert and Dieter Ferring
ten Family change theory: a preliminary evaluation on the basis of recent cross-cultural studies	167
Boris Mayer

Part III: Applied issues and practical focus	189
eleven How does family sociology contribute to the definition and measurement of a concept of family care for elderly persons? Amandine J. Masuy	191
twelve Intergenerational solidarity in an ageing society: socio-demographic determinants of intergenerational support to elderly parents Susana Coimbra, Luísa A. Ribeiro and Anne Marie Fontaine	205
thirteen Family caregiving for older people from a life-span developmental point of view Thomas Boll and Dieter Ferring	223
Where do we go from here? An epilogue concerning the importance of the of solidarity between generations Dieter Ferring and Isabelle Albert	241
Index	245