

Contents

Preface	vii
Selected Bibliography	ix
Introductory Essay	xiii
Philebus
I. The introductory challenge: pleasure vs. knowledge (11a–14b)	1
II. The “dialectical” part of the discussion: the classification of pleasure and knowledge (14b–31b)	5
1. The problem of the One and Many (14b–20a)	5
2. The Dream of Socrates and the compromise solution (20b–23b)	14
3. The fourfold division of all beings (23b–27c)	18
4. The genera of pleasure and knowledge (27c–31b)	25
III. The “critical” part of the discussion: critique of pleasure and knowledge (31b–59d)	30
1. The critique of pleasure: the nature of pleasure and pain (31b–36c)	30
2. The question of false pleasures (36c–50e)	38
(1) False pleasures: pleasures falsely depicted (36c–41b)	38
(2) False pleasures: inflated pleasures (41b–42c)	46
(3) False pleasures: confusion of pleasure with freedom from pain (42c–44e)	48
(4) False pleasures: pleasures mixed with pain (44e–50e)	52
3. True pleasures (50e–55c)	60
4. The critique of knowledge: pure and impure forms (55c–59d)	66
IV. The “synthetic” part of the discussion: mixing together the good life (59d–64b)	72
V. The solution of the discussion: the final ranking of goods (64c–67b)	79