

Contents

Preface	page ix
1 Introduction	I
An 'intelligible field of study'	I
Main themes	10
2 Tribal kingship: from the fall of Rome to the end of the Merovingians	34
3 The First Europe: the Carolingian empire	43
The political framework	43
Fundamental characteristics	44
The public law	45
Decline of the First Europe	50
4 Europe divided: the post-Carolingian era	54
The disintegration of the Frankish empire	54
Feudalism	56
The seignior	61
The empire	63
The Church	67
5 The foundation of the modern state	72
General outline	72
The new structures	74
Half-way between feudalism and the modern state	76
The legal limitations of the late medieval monarchy	78
An oppressive or a democratic state?	88
6 The classic absolutism of the Ancient Regime	91
General characteristics	91
Analysis of the public law in two countries	98

7	The absolute state no lasting model	108
	General considerations	108
	The transformation of English kingship	109
	Enlightened absolutism	125
	The Republic of the United Netherlands	142
	The United States of America	150
	The French Revolution and the Napoleonic regime	174
8	The bourgeois nation state	194
	General outline	194
	Great Britain	196
	France after Napoleon	200
	Germany from Napoleon to Wilhelm II	217
	Belgium and the Netherlands	230
	Switzerland	241
9	The liberal model transformed or rejected	244
	The liberal state transformed	244
	The liberal state rejected	247
	The Bolshevik Revolution and the Constitution of the Soviet Union	249
	Germany and the Third Reich	270
	Epilogue	292
	Select bibliography	296
	Index	319