

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
The townland and the town: from the rural to the urban	2
The point of the contrast	7
Cities as complex systems	9
Taking things further	12
Sources	21
1 The city at the beginning of a new millennium	23
The industrial and postindustrial city	24
A world becoming urban and postindustrial	27
‘Being after’ I: postindustrial	28
‘Being after’ II: postFordist	29
‘Being after’ III: postindustrial capitalism	32
‘Being after’ IV: postmodernism	32
Culture in the ‘post’ world	38
Concluding remarks and further resources	40
2 The genesis and the implications of the postindustrial city	45
The causes of deindustrialisation	47
The simple story: global determines everything	50
The built environment: urban space as commodity	54
Ranting globally, acting locally, spreading the simple story	56
Active underdevelopment in the network society	60
Concluding remarks and further resources	64
3 Locality and community: the significance of place	66
Community: network and meaning in places	67
Locality: space and structure	73
Katowice / Upper Silesia: locality and community in a context of restructuring	77

	The significance of emergence: locality and identity considered as complex forms	82
	Concluding remarks and further resources	83
4	Grounding the global: cities in a world system	86
	Funny money: the world after big bang	88
	World cities or cities in a world system?	91
	World cities as unequal cities	96
	The global and the local under postindustrial capitalism	101
	Concluding remarks and further resources	102
5	The divided city: the ecology of postindustrial places	105
	Urban ecologies: Chicago and beyond	107
	Divided cities	109
	The suburbs	112
	Tenure: a British obsession?	117
	Living, shopping, and working ex-urban: edge city	121
	Ethnicity, age cohort, gender, and the divided city	123
	What makes cities unequal?	125
	Concluding remarks and further resources	128
6	Culture and the urban: commodity, understanding and resource	129
	The meaning of culture	129
	The classic standards: Wirth and Simmel	131
	The political economy of culture: city and suburb in the urban world	134
	The cultural turn: the city as text	141
	Ways of being: the constitution and reconstitution of collective identities	143
	Concluding remarks and further resources	145
7	The production and reproduction of the built environment	148
	Land matters: building in space	150
	Evangelistic bureaucrats: experts at work	154
	Building in the South	156
	Shopping and trading: the postmodern urban core	156
	Building and governance: the exercise of power	161
	Edge city: the creation of placeless place	162
	Concluding remarks and further resources	165

8 Politics and governance in urban places	167
The necessity for the local state and for an urban state	169
Collective consumption: urban politics and the reproduction of labour power	171
Entrepreneurial regimes: the policy sciences of the urban state	174
Civil society, social movements and urban politics	179
Concluding remarks and further resources	186
Conclusion: the trajectory of complex cities into the 21st century	188
Notes	197
Bibliography	199
Index	213