

CONTENTS

1	Introduction: Genesis of the Tele-Text	1
	Blythe Worthy and Paul Sheehan
Part I	Comic Noir	19
2	The Aesthetics of Television: Genre, Auteur, Canon	21
	Paul Giles
3	Institutionalising the ‘Bad’ Postfeminist: Phoebe Waller-Bridge’s Fleabag from Stage to Television	43
	Heebon Park-Finch
4	Genre Trouble: Netflix’s Lady Dynamite and Self-Help Television	63
	Rodney Taveira
Part II	Outlaws, Criminals, Auteurs	83
5	What Is Television? Two Auteur Series in Literary Contexts	85
	Thomas Britt

6	Retcon, Race, and Retransmission: The Role of HBO's Watchmen in Contemporary Storytelling	105
	Ryan Twomey
7	Entente cordiale: Netflix's Lupin and the BBC's Sherlock, a Tale of Two Fandoms	123
	Shannon Wells-Lassagne
	Part III Queering Young Adulthood	143
8	Breaking the Curse of Knowledge: Adaptation, Ethics, and Enchantment in Netflix's Heartstopper	145
	Debra Dudek
9	Hearing with Eyes and Seeing with Ears: Adaptive Aesthetics in the BBC's Shakespeare for Children	163
	Katrine K. Wong
10	Queering Emily Dickinson for the Millennial Age	183
	Pamela Demory
	Part IV Transnational/Transcultural Exchanges	201
11	Tracing Trans/National/Textual Limits in Jane Campion's Top of the Lake: China Girl	203
	Blythe Worthy
12	The Dialectic of Transnational Adaptation: Questioning the Web Adaptation of A Suitable Boy	231
	Meenakshi Bharat

13 This Is Amerika: Dreaming of Kafka in FX's Atlanta	249
Paul Sheehan
14 An Afterword: Adapting the Television of Television Studies	269
Christine Geraghty
Index	279

Meenakshi Bharat, is a writer, translator, reviewer and cultural theorist who teaches in the Department of English, Sri Venkateswara College, University of Delhi. Her special interests include children's literature, women's fiction, film, postcolonial, adaptation, translation and cultural studies—areas which she has extensively researched. Apart from numerous articles, she has published critical monographs, The Ultimate Gaze: The Child in Postcolonial Fiction: Troubled Testimonies, Terrorists and the English Novel in India (2016) and Spotting Terror: Terrorism and the Hindi Film (2020), which take on the impact of colonisation and terrorism on contemporary Indian culture, and two children's books. She has edited several critical anthologies and five volumes of Indo-Australian translation (oral) to stories and line collections. Her creative and critical writing has appeared in various journals and magazines. She served as President of the International Federation of Modern Languages and Literatures (IFMLL, UNESCO, 2014–2017). She is on the advisory board of the IFMLL Series, John Benjamins, the Netherlands.

Thomas Britt is Professor of Film and Video Studies at George Mason University in Fairfax, Virginia, where he oversees the screenwriting concentration and created courses including ethics of film and video and global horror film. His research interests include death in post-classical screen storytelling, adaptations of literature, film, television and music, and horror across media. He has published several articles and chapters about David Lynch and Twin Peaks, including "Between Two Myriads".