
Contents

Preface ix

Acknowledgments xiii

Introduction: The Place of Diversity 1

1. Diversity Ascendant 13

I Public Schooling and American Citizenship 41

2. Civic Anxieties 45

3. Civic Excess and Reaction 88

4. The Decline of the Common School Idea 110

5. Civic Ends: The Dangers of Civic Totalism 131

II Liberal Civic Education and Religious Fundamentalism 149

6. Multiculturalism and the Religious Right 153

7. Diversity and the Problem of Justification 166

8. The Mirage of Perfect Fairness 188

9. Divided Selves and Transformative Liberalism 212

III School Reform and Civic Education 229

10. Civic Purposes and Public Schools 231

11. The Case for Civically Minded School Reform 254

Conclusion: Public Reasons, Private Transformations 275

Notes 281

Index 337