

CONTENTS

	Acknowledgments	x
	Introduction	xv
1.	Apostles of Modernity	1
	Picking up the tempo	2
	Practical heroics and versatility	5
	Erasing the Barnum image	7
	The advertisement becomes "modern"	9
	Side by side with the consumer	13
	Three legends in the making	16
	Selling satisfactions	22
2.	Men of the People: The New Professionals	25
	Two routes to professionalism	25
	Ambassadors of the consumer	29
	Atypical men—and women	32
	The agency subculture: courtiers and creators	39
	Competition, craftsmanship, and cynicism	44
	Benign deceptions	48
3.	Keeping the Audience in Focus	52
	Keys to the consumer mind: confessions and tabloids	53
	The matinee crowd	61
	The limits of consumer citizenship	63
	Sizing up the constituency: the feminine masses	66

	"Oh, what do the simple folk like?"	69
	"Getting to know them"	72
	In search of the typical consumer	77
	Feedback from secondary audiences	80
	Folk wisdom, uplift, and the irresponsible public	83
4.	Abandoning the Great Genteel Hope: From Sponsored Radio to the Funny Papers	88
	Sponsorship only: radio as cultural uplift	89
	Super-advertising and the specter of saturation	94
	Interweaving the commercial	105
	Crooners and commercials: from intrusion to intimacy	108
	Entertainment triumphs: the descent into the funny papers	110
5.	The Consumption Ethic: Strategies of Art and Style	117
	Advertising and the color explosion	120
	Uplifted tastes and borrowed atmospheres	127
	The mystique of the ensemble	132
	Modern art and advertising dynamics	140
	Photography as sincerity	149
	Art and the consumption ethic	153
	Progressive obsolescence	156
	The gospel of the full cereal bowl	160
6.	Advertisements as Social Tableaux	164
	The concept of a social tableau	165
	Modern woman as businesswoman: "The Little Woman, G.P.A."	167
	Leisure—for what?	171
	Grotesque moderne	179
	Anticipations of superwoman: finessing the contradictions of modernity	186
	The businessman as generic man	188
	Supporting players	191
	Social class in advertising tableaux	194
	Modern maids and atavistic ambitions	201
7.	The Great Parables	206
	The parable of the first impression	208
	The parable of the democracy of goods	217
	The parable of civilization redeemed	223
	The parable of the captivated child	228
	Guideposts to a modern "logic of living"	233

8.	Visual Clichés: Fantasies and Icons	235
	Fantasies of domain: the office window and the family circle	238
	Fantasies of dimension: the future and the eternal village	255
	Visual clichés as icons	264
9.	Advertising in Overalls: Parables and Visual Clichés of the Depression	285
	Retrenchment and morale boosting	285
	The depression as sales argument: some parables revisited	288
	Parables of the depression: unraised hands and skinny kids	296
	Depression advertising as a shift in style	300
	Upstart agencies with that depression touch	306
	Ballyhoo , organized consumers, and the New Deal	312
	Medicine man tactics and self-esteem	315
	Success, advertising men, and the courage quotient	317
	Economic sunbeams: reassurance and inspiration	320
	Clenched fists	324
10.	The Therapeutics of Advertising	335
	Urbanity and complexity: the problem of scale	336
	Proliferating choices and the vacuum of advice	341
	Advertising advice and added values	347
	Toward a new incompetence	349
	The "re-personalization" of American life	352
	Finessing the complexities of scale	359
	Notes	365
	Bibliographical Essay	419
	Sources for Illustrations	427
	Index	437