

Contents

Introduction	9
1. After the Spatial Turn	14
1.1 Approaching Grace's and Mawer's Spatial Representations	28
2. Jim Grace	33
3. Imaginary Landscapes and Landscapes of the Imagination in Jim Grace's Continent and The Gift of Stones	43
3.1 Continent	43
3.1.1 Continent's Imaginary Landscapes	44
3.1.2 Experiencing Spaces in Transition	54
3.2 The Gift of Stones	56
3.2.1 A Narrative Animal	56
3.2.2 From Wild Plant to Raconteur	59
3.2.3 A World That's Upside Down – the Landscapes of the Imagination	63
3.2.4 Consolatory Spatial Narratives of Transition	66
4. Character and Landscape Construction in Jim Grace's Signals of Distress and Quarantine	68
4.1 Signals of Distress	68
4.1.1 Of Words and Deeds: Aymer Smith	69
4.1.2 Symbolic Topography – Landscapes of Distress	74
4.1.3 The Old, the New, and the Unchanging	81
4.2 Quarantine	82
4.2.1 The Haggard, Incautious, and Rewarding Land of Quarantine	85
4.2.2 The Landscape as a Moral Agent	94

5. Jim Crace's Cityscape: Spatial Hybridisations, Transgressiveness, and Transmodern Critique in Arcadia (and The Melody)	96
5.1 Arcadia	96
5.1.1 The Urban Pastoral	97
5.1.2 In Search of Hope: The Townies	100
5.1.3 Agora vs. Arcadia	104
5.1.4 Straightforward Complexity	106
5.1.5 The Transmodern Paradigm Shift	108
5.1.6 Transmodern and Transgressive Craceland	110
5.1.7 Arcadia's Spatial Representations	111
5.1.8 Arcadia's Transmodernist Critique	117
5.1.9 Arcadia's Transmodern Spatio-temporality	120
5.2 Transmodern Concerns and Transgressive Spatiality in The Melody	121
6. Literary Cartography in Jim Crace's The Pesthouse and Harvest	124
6.1 The Pesthouse	124
6.1.1 The Heterogeneous Space of Crace's Imagined America	125
6.1.2 The Volatile Real-and-Imagined Landscapes	128
6.1.3 The Doomed Turned Blessed – Heterotopic Places	132
6.1.4 Mapping the Landscape of Trauma, Pain, and Hope	135
6.2 Harvest	136
6.2.1 Delusive Idyll	137
6.2.2 The Narrator	139
6.2.3 Mapping and Being Mapped	143
6.2.4 Cartography of Insecurity and Wonder	145
7. Simon Mawer	147
8. Chimera: Pioneering Simon Mawer's (Spatial) Poetics	166
8.1 Liminality in Chimera	169
8.2 Parallelism in Chimera	173
8.3 Idiosyncratic Conception of Time in Chimera	174
8.4 Thematisation of Archaeology	177
8.5 Thematisation of Catholicism	182
8.6 Place and Space in Chimera	185
9. Thematising Science and the Region of Central Europe in Simon Mawer's Mendel's Dwarf	190
9.1 Benedict Lambert – the Protagonist	191
9.2 Thematisation of Science in Mendel's Dwarf	193
9.3 The Space of Central Europe	194

10. The Glass Room: Housing Space, Architecture, and History	196
10.1 The Modernist Inspiration	197
10.2 The Glass Room from the Perspective of Historical Fiction	198
10.3 The Spatial Poetics of The Glass Room	200
10.4 The Glass Room and the Ideals of Architectural Modernism	206
11. Mapping the Liminal in Simon Mawer's Prague Spring	212
11.1 A Slice of History	213
11.2 Prototypical Protagonists	214
11.3 A Roll of the Dice	217
11.4 The Intangible and the Historical Accurate	218
11.5 Mapping a Historical Conflict	220
12. Spy Fiction as a Meditation on Identity, Space and Place in Simon Mawer's The Girl Who Fell from the Sky and Tightrope	222
12.1 The Girl Who Fell from the Sky: A Literary Spy Novel	223
12.1.1 Marian Sutro – the Liminal Protagonist	224
12.1.2 The Spatial Poetics of The Girl Who Fell from the Sky	226
12.1.3 Liminality as a Key Feature	228
12.1.4 The Girl Who Fell from the Sky from a Geocritical Perspective	230
12.2 Tightrope	236
12.2.1 Place and Identity	237
12.2.2 A Geopolitical Conflict from a Geocritical Perspective	240
Conclusion	244
Bibliography	250
Internet Sources	256
Lectures and Conference Papers	261
Index	262