

Contents

Abbreviations xii

A Note on Textual Methodology xiii

1. Nietzsche's Flesh, Kant's Skeleton 1

From Kant to Nietzsche 1

Germany in the later nineteenth century 9

Nietzsche's secondary sources concerning Kant 13

Nietzsche's reading of Kant 20

Nietzsche's image of Kant 20

Reading Kant 32

The interpretation 35

PART ONE. The First Reading: Judgement (1868–1874)

2. The Critique of Judgement 39

The place of the Critique of Judgement in Kant's thought 39

Aesthetic judgement 49

The unity of the concept of reflective judgement 58

Teleological judgement 67

The message of the Critique of Judgement 72

3. Early Nietzsche and the Critique of Judgement 73

Why Nietzsche read the Critique of Judgement 73

Schopenhauer on teleology 75

Lange, Darwin, and Kant 80

'On the concept of the organic since Kant' 83

'On Schopenhauer' 94

The Dionysian world artist 98

Contents

The aesthetics of Birth of Tragedy	104
Life force	112

PART TWO. The Second Reading: Reason (1880–1889)

4. Space, Time, and Idealism 119

Space and time in Kant	119
Space and time in Nietzsche	123
Time	134
The Antinomies	141

5. Kant on Metaphysics 146

Nietzsche's debt	146
The Deduction introduced	146
Categories	149
The Transcendental Deduction	153
The Paralogisms	161
Appendix: textual issues concerning the Transcendental Deduction	164

6. Nietzsche on Metaphysics 169

Kant's and Nietzsche's critiques compared	169
The presence of Kant in Truth and Lie	171
The argument of Twilight of the Idols: 'reason' in philosophy	175
Nietzsche's reading of the Deduction and Paralogisms	180
Truth	186
Synthesis and struggle	194

7. The Critique of Morality 196

The three pillars of Kantian ethics	196
The second Critique and the Genealogy of Morals	202
Genealogy	203
First essay: slave morality as a source of moral intuitions	205

Contents

Second essay: conscience and the analysis of agency 215

Third essay: asceticism and the phenomenal-noumenal contrast 222

Conclusion: The Ruins of Reason? 230

Bibliography 233

Index 239