

Contents

Preface IX

Acknowledgements X

Prologue: Script and Divination Intertwined 1

1 The Manipulation of Chinese Characters Cezi 12

1 An Introduction to Cezi Vis-à-vis Divination and the Chinese Writing System 12

2 A Chronological Overview of Historical Influences on Cezi 24

3 A History of the Study of Cezi 33

4 The Zichu by Zhou Lianggong 49

2 Surrounding and Extending the Zichu: The Paratexts 57

1 Meaningful Designations: Linguistic Theory in the Paratexts 63

2 A Scholar's Leisure Time Activity: Divination in the Paratexts 71

3 Visualising Character Theory 77

4 Comprehending Characters by Observing the World 110

5 Exhausting and Embracing the "Hidden" and the "Humorous" 132

6 Divining with Characters on the Grounds of Encrypted Words 151

7 Instructions on How to Use the Zichu 169

3 Different Approaches to Cezi: The Six Chapters of the Zichu 216

1 Thought Based on Writing: Script-Understanding as Apparent in the Zichu 221

2 Meaningful Correlations: Divination and Fate in the Zichu 227

3 Hidden Messages and Prophetic Songs and Poems 230

4 Temporal, Individual, and Morphological Coincidences 249

5 Heterogeneous Examples of Character Manipulation 267

6 Prophetic Dreams and Misinterpretations of Characters 277

7 Witty Banter and Orthography Riddles 293

8 Etymological Character Explanations 310

Epilogue: Character Manipulation, Then and Now 322

Bibliography 327

Index 346