

Contents

Studying subsistence and surplus production	7
Maaïke Groot and Daphne Lentjes
The role of gathering in Middle Archaic social complexity in the Mid-South: a diachronic perspective	29
Stephen B. Carmody and Kandace D. Hollenbach
Rethinking Neolithic subsistence at the gateway to Europe with new archaeozoological evidence from Istanbul	59
Canan Çakırlar
Agricultural production between the 6th and the 3rd millennium cal BC in the central part of the Valencia region (Spain)	81
Guillem Pérez Jordà and Leonor Peña-Chocarro
From subsistence to market exchange: the development of an agricultural economy in 1st-millennium-BC Southeast Italy	101
Daphne Lentjes
Three systems of agrarian exploitation in the Valencian region of Spain (400-300 BC)	131
Ma ^a Pilar Iborra Eres and Guillem Pérez Jordà
The well in the settlement: a water source for humans and livestock, studied through insect remains from Southeast Sweden	151
Magnus Hellqvist
The Late Iron Age-Roman transformation from subsistence to surplus production in animal husbandry in the Central and Western parts of the Netherlands	175
Joyce van Dijk and Maaïke Groot
Tracing changes in animal husbandry in Mallorca (Balearic Islands, Western Mediterranean) from the Iron Age to the Roman Period	201
Alejandro Valenzuela, Josep Antoni Alcover, Miguel Ángel Cau

Food production and exchanges in the Roman civitas Tungrorum	225
Fabienne Pigière and Annick Lepot
Entrepreneurs and traditional farmers: the effects of an emerging market in Middle Saxon England	247
Matilda Holmes
Scant evidence of great surplus: research at the rural Cistercian monastery of Holme Cultram, Northwest England	279
Don O'Meara

