

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Note on Transliterations	viii
1 Introduction: An indirect line of enquiry	1
1.1 The purpose	1
1.2 The construct	7
1.3 The overview	13
2 The evolution of Islamism	15
2.1 From Banna to Morsi	16
2.2 From Zaytouna to the parliament	19
2.3 From Milli Görüş to the AKP	23
3 The history of the interaction	27
3.1 Erbakan, Ghannouchi and the MB	27
3.2 The spread of frames for legitimacy	33
3.3 Conservative/Muslim democracy and the Turkish model	35
3.3.1 The origins of Conservative/Muslim democracy	36
3.3.2 The origins of the Turkish model	40
3.3.3 The EU and the Turkish model	43
4 The context, milestones and actors of the interplay	47
4.1 The AKP in Cairo, the MB in Ankara and Istanbul	50
4.2 The AKP in Tunis, Ennahda in Ankara and Istanbul	55
4.3 The actors and interlocutors	61
4.3.1 The elite actors	62
4.3.2 The interlocutors and structure	63
4.3.3 Brokers: Al Jazeera and Yusuf Al-Qaradawi	67
5 The tactics of success for Islamists	71
5.1 Winning the system	77
5.2 Service to people is like a prayer	82
5.3 Protective alliances against the old regime	86

5.3.1	Threats and alliances for the MB	87
5.3.2	Threats and alliances for Ennahda	96
6	Brothers in search of their bourgeoisie	99
6.1	Road to neoliberalism	101
6.2	The economic vision of Ennahda and the MB	105
6.3	Cultivating an Islamic bourgeoisie	111
7	The new spirit of Islamism	121
7.1	Islamist longing for success	121
7.2	Post-Islamism and managerialism	124
7.2.1	What do Muslim youth want?	126
7.2.2	Managerial awakening	129
7.2.3	Cheap Islamization	133
8	Changing dynamics of the interplay	137
8.1	Post-2013 period: Fear, isolation and activism	139
8.1.1	The MB – the AKP	139
8.1.2	Ennahda – the AKP	143
8.2	Erdogan's U-turns vis-a-vis the MB	147
8.3	The current crisis, democracy and Islamism	152
9	Conclusion: The sink, the cooker and Islamism	161
	Notes	171
	Bibliography	212
	Index	236