

Contents

Preface 1

A brief story from Newburgh that shows some of the book's foci and lays out some of its arguments

Introduction 9

A brief history of Newburgh and presentation of the book's theoretical framework

1 "Like Brooklyn, but Affordable" 31

The reasons newcomers give for moving to Newburgh and how they frame it as a city through a "diversity" racial discourse

2 Pride in Place 61

How returning and lifelong residents support gentrification as a way to revitalize their hometown

3 A New Challenge 84

The ambivalent, race-conscious attitudes existing residents of color have toward gentrification and their fears of being excluded from its benefits

4 Opportunity 109

The moral frame that gentrification stakeholders use to justify "conditional gentrification" through a "colorblind" racial discourse

5 Curate Your City 141

*Three ways that gentrification stakeholders curate urban space to expand the creative economy and increase property values
using both racial discourses*

6 The Precarious Project and the Wasted Opportunity 176

A yearlong conflict over a proposed affordable housing project between existing residents who support it, and gentrification stakeholders who oppose it

Conclusion 205

Three takeaways, and parting thoughts
