

Table of Contents

Introduction	15
Editor's Preface	27
Preface	29
Chapter I – The Harmonic Material of the Tempered Chromatic System
§1. The Tempered Chromatic System and its Notation	39
§2. Premises for the Investigation of Harmonic Material.....	41
§3. The Orientation Scheme of Chord-types	43
§4. The Harmonic Scheme of Chord-types.....	45
§5. Inversion of a Chord-type. Symmetrical and Asymmetrical Chord-types	46
§6. Types of Two-note Chords	48
§7. Types of Three-note Chords.....	48
§8. Types of Four-note Chords.....	51
§9. Types of Five-note Chords	53
§10. The Negative of a Chord-type	54
§11. Types of Six-note Chords	58
§12. The Harmonic Possibilities of the Tempered Chromatic System	62
§13. Types of Multi-note Chords	63
§14. Pitch-systems Contained in the Tempered Chromatic System.....	64
§15. Conclusions and Prospects.....	67
Chapter II – Sonic Characteristics of the Harmonic Material
§16. Consonance and Dissonance	69
§17. Dissonant Elements.....	70
§18. The Principle of Harmonic Inversion	72
§19. Dissonant Characteristics of Chords.....	74
§20. Influence of Consonant Components.....	76

§21. Family Characteristics of Chords.....	77
§22. Increasing the Dissonant Characteristic.....	80
§23. Merging of Dissonant Characteristics.....	83
§24. Semitone Clash of Semitone and Tritone Elements	86
§25. Summary.....	89

Chapter IIIa – Classification of the Harmonic Material

§26. The Concept of a Harmony in Classical Harmony	93
§27. Transient Chords	95
§28. Incomplete Harmonies	96
§29. The Formation of New Harmonies	97
§30. The Concept of a Harmony in Modern Harmony.....	98
§31. The Concept of the Characteristic Maximum	101
§32. The Concept of the Characteristic Nucleus	102
§33. Consonant Harmonies as Maxima with the Negative Dissonant Characteristic.....	104
§34. The Characteristic Maximum 6	104
§35. The Characteristic Maximum 2	105
§36. Characteristic Maxima 1 and 01	107
§37. Characteristic Maxima 0 , 26 , and 026	108
§38. Characteristic Maxima 16 and 016	110
§39. Characteristic Maxima 12 and 012	111
§40. Characteristic Maxima 126	112
§41. Characteristic Maxima 0126	115
§42. Characteristic Maxima 166 and 1266	117
§43. Characteristic Maxima 112 and 0112	119
§44. Characteristic Maxima 1126	120
§45. Characteristic Maxima 01126	123
§46. Characteristic Maxima 11266	125
§47. The Characteristic Maximum 011266	127
§48. The System of Characteristic-types	128
§49. Connections between Chords with Different Dissonant Characteristics.....	130
§50. Boundaries between Characteristic-types	134

Chapter IIIb – Triadic Combinations

§51. The System of Triadic Combinations	137
§52. True and Partial Combinations; Combination Categories.....	138
§53. Basic Triads (Harmonies I).....	139
§54. Combination Harmonies II	141
§55. Partial Combinations with Two Components	146
§56. Triadic Combinations III	148
§57. The Triadic Combinations IV	150
§58. Classification of Chords into Combination Categories	152
§59. Representation of Triadic Combinations	153
§60. The Significance of the Combination System.....	155

Chapter IV – Disposition of Chords

§61. The Concept of Disposition	157
§62. The Form, Position, and Inner Disposition of a Chord; Pitch Doublings	158
§63. Evaluating the Sound of Dispositions.....	159
§64. Disposition of Basic Triads.....	160
§65. Evaluating the Sound of Inversions and their Dispositions.....	163
§66. Disposition of Consonant Components in Dissonant Chords	164
§67. Disposition of Dissonant Intervals	165
§68. Disposition of Triadic Combinations	169
§69. Disposition of Harmonies II	174
§70. Disposition of Partial Combinations with Two Components; Doubled Pitches in Intervals 1	179
§71. Disposition of Triadic Combinations III	183
§72. Disposition of the Triadic Combination IV; Softening of Semitone Clashes of Intervals 1 through Disposition	185
§73. Disposition of Chords in a Harmonic Progression.....	191
§74. Disposition of Chords and Compositional Practice	194

Chapter V – Expression of Chords

§75. Real and Imaginary Pitches	195
§76. Appearance and Cancellation of an Imaginary Pitch	196
§77. The Counter-canceling Pitch	198
§78. The Dying Away of a Harmonic Imaginary Pitch	199

§79. Compositional Acceleration of the Dying Away of a Harmonic Imaginary Pitch.....	201
§80. Harmonic Significance of Imaginary Pitches.....	202
§81. Chords Expressed by Real Pitches.....	204
§82. Chords Expressed by Imaginary Pitches.....	207
§83. Composite Expression of Chords in a Single Voice	208
§84. Composite Expression of Chords in Polyphony	211
§85. Non-harmonic Tones in Chords of Composite Expression.....	214
§86. Time Boundaries between Chords of Composite Expression.....	216
§87. Tonal Imaginary Pitches	221
§88. Incomplete Expression of Harmonies.....	224

Chapter VIa – Harmonic Motion: Concepts and Principles

§89. Possibilities of Motion in Music.....	227
§90. Possibilities of Harmonic Motion	228
§91. Links in a Chord Succession.....	229
§92. Partial Harmonic Motion	231
§93. Fundamental Harmonic Motion	235
§94. Intervals in Fundamental Harmonic Motion; Imaginary Links	236
§95. Real Links in Fundamental Harmonic Motion	238
§96. Adjacent Partial and Fundamental Harmonic Motions	241
§97. Higher-ranked Harmonic Motion or Tonal Motion.....	242
§98. The Significance of Cadential Chord Successions.....	244
§99. The Principle of the Pure Tonic	245
§100. Application of the Principle of the Pure Tonic in the Tempered Chromatic System	247
§101. Application of the Principle of the Pure Tonic in the Diatonic System	249
§102. The Principle of the Leading Tone.....	250

Chapter VIb – Harmonic Motion: Functions and their Combinations

§103. The Functional Principle.....	251
§104. Establishing the Tonic.....	252
§105. Types of Representative Pre-tonic Harmonies.....	253
§106. Establishing Possible Representative Pre-tonic Harmonies	254
§107. The Classical Functional System of Three Members.....	256

§108. Šín's Functional System of Five Members	257
§109. Stabilization of Relations between Harmonies of the Functional System; the Minor Dominant	259
§110. Consonant Combinations of Functions (Interfunctions)	260
§111. Dissonant Combinations of Functions	264
§112. Functional Ambiguity of Dissonant Combinations	267
§113. Evaluating Functional Components According to their Tonal Significance, Disposition, and Representation	274

Chapter VIc – Harmonic Motion: Function in Harmonic Progression

§114. Harmonic Motion between Functions	277
§115. The Functional Aspect of Chords in a Chord Succession	281
§116. Unitonal, Bitonal, and Polytonal Combinations	284
§117. Local Tonics and Applied Functions	286
§118. Alteration of Functions	289
§119. Modulation	292
§120. Loosening Tonally Functional Relations	295
§121. Non-Functional (Atonal) Music	299
§122. Compositional Order and General Compositional Styling	305
§123. Horizontal Thinking. Voice-leading	309

Chapter VII – Problems

§124. The Concept of Modern Harmony	315
§125. Universal and Artistic Laws	316
§126. The Evolution of Compositional Technique	317
§127. The Natural Foundation of Music Theory	319
§128. The Significance of Experience	321
§129. The Search for Law	324
§130. Static and Kinetic Conceptions of Harmony	326

Chapter VIII – Compositional Practice

§131. Composition and Theory	333
§132. Modern Melody	334
§133. Practical Studies of Chord-types	336
§134. Practical Studies of Characteristic-types and Harmonies	339

§135. Styling Studies on a Given Harmonic Basis	342
§136. Harmonizing a Melody	345
§137. Employing Textural Resources Economically	349
§138. Resolving Dissonant Chords	351
§139. Seeking a Suitable Pre-tonic Combination	355
§140. Functional Chord Successions	356
§141. Functional Variations in a Chord Progression	359
§142. Free Composition	362

Chapter IX – Analytical Practice

§143. A Method of Harmonic Analysis	369
§144. Examining and Evaluating Real Chordal Cross-sections; Seeking New Chord Formations	370
§145. Determining Chords from Real and Imaginary Pitches; Rhythmic and Metric Distribution of Chords in a Composition; Transient Chords	371
§146. Chordal and Harmonic Character of a Composition; Character of Dispositions	374
§147. Examining Transient Chords	377
§148. Diatonic Passages; Chromatic Progressions	381
§149. Determining the Compositional Order; Evaluating Melodic Lines	383
§150. The Study of Cadences and Cadential Passages	385
§151. Functional Chord Successions	388
§152. The Formation and Extinction of a Sense of the Tonic	391
§153. The Tonally Functional Plan of a Composition; Overall Functional Character	394

Tables and Overviews

I. Comprehensive Survey of Chord-types	397
II. System of Characteristic-types	410
III. Characteristic Maxima by Chord-class	412
IV. Characteristic Nuclei by Chord-class	414
V. Boundaries between Characteristic-types	415
VI. Symbols and abbreviations	418

Bibliography	423
Sources of Examples from Contemporary Music	427
Zusammenfassung	429
Karel Janeček: Additional Notes to Some Phenomena of Harmonic and Tonal Thinking	453
Vladimír Tichý: Order, System, Structure, Function and Mutual Interplay of Theory and Practice	461
1. On Music Theory	461
2. Karel Janeček – the Key Figure for Czech Music Theory	467
3. The Path to Foundations of Modern Harmony	473
4. Foundations of Modern Harmony – General Overview and Characteristics of the Main Questions	479
Conclusion	497
References	499
Subject Index	503
Name Index	507