

Contents

Introduction	1
Sources	3
Structure and organization	7
1 Biography	14
Modena	14
Ferrara (1540/45–1548)	20
Pisa (1548–1551)	23
Padua (1551–1562)	24
2 Anatomy	30
Lectures	30
Anatomical demonstrations	32
Anatomy and medical practice	35
The anatomist as an executioner?	37
Falloppia's findings and discoveries	42
Female genitals	46
Ileocaecal valve	49
Lacteals	50
Brain and cranial nerves	51
Eye muscles	52
Auditory organs	54
Heart and major vessels	55
Muscles	57
Vesalius' response	59
Comparative anatomy	62
3 Surgery	76
Dermatology: ulcers and other skin conditions	80
Caustics and cauterization	82
The French disease	83

The “condom”	88
Bumps, swellings, and tumors	91
Palliative care	92
Cosmetic medicine	95
Trauma: wounds, dislocations, and fractures	101

4	Materia medica	113
----------	-----------------------	------------

Medicinal plants	113
Metals, stones, and earths	118
Thermal springs and mineral waters	121
Empirical observation: experimentum, periculum, and total substance	126

5	Medical practice	133
----------	-------------------------	------------

De modo consultandi	134
Medical cases	137

6	Last years	146
----------	-------------------	------------

Leaving Padua?	146
Tensions and conflicts	147
Gabrielle Falloppia and Melchior Wieland	154
The controversy between Mattioli and Wieland	155
A “liaison dangereuse”?	159
Final days	160

7	Legacy	170
----------	---------------	------------

Students and successors	170
Posthumous publications	171
The book of secrets	173
Portraits	175

Sources and bibliography	182
---------------------------------	------------

Illustrations	182
Manuscript sources	182
Bibliography of Falloppia’s works	185
Collected works	185
Anatomy	186
Surgery	187
Materia medica	189
General bibliography	191

Index	207
--------------	------------