

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Preface	xi
1. Introduction	1
1.1 The origin of symbolism of European long barrows	3
1.2 The character of the Middle/Late Neolithic period in Bohemia	13
1.3 Middle/Late Neolithic burial rites in Bohemia	27
2. Long barrows in the European context	33
3. Long barrows in Bohemia	39
3.1 The contribution of archaeological remote sensing (Martin Gojda)	42
3.2 Catalogue of long barrows in Bohemia	44
3.3 Summary of long barrows in Bohemia	92
4. Stories of barrows around Mount Říp	97
4.1 Dušníky long barrow: tomb of an exceptional child?	98
4.2 Vražkov 1 long barrow: treasures under ancestors patronage?	110
4.3 Račiněves long barrow: archer's prestige and a timber shrine	116
4.4 Types of barrow constructions	125
4.5 Chronologies: construction, decline, and re-use of monuments	131
5. Theory of the ritual landscape	137
5.1 Prehistoric sacred places of Bohemia	138
5.2 Ancient routes and Říp as a mythical landmark of Bohemia	143
5.3 Tombs of Forefathers: prehistoric tradition in medieval legends	150
6. Long barrows as part of the ritual landscape	153
6.1 Prehistoric settlement of the Říp plateau (Petr Křišťuf, Jan Fišer)	153
6.2 Palaeo-ecology of the cultural landscape around Mount Říp (Petr Pokorný, Barbora Strouhalová, Martin Janovský, Kristýna Hošková, Jan Novák, Hana Grison, Jan Turek, Petr Křišťuf)	156
6.3 Tradition and palimpsest of ritual behaviour	168
6.4 Archaeoastronomy (Cyril Ron, Jiří Švehla, Petr Křišťuf)	170
7. Conclusions: monuments in landscape and human culture	179
7.1 Bohemian long barrows in European context	179
7.2 Purpose of long barrows	180
7.3 Long-term palimpsest of the ritual landscape around Mount Říp	181
7.4 Sacred mount, long barrows and the transformation of vegetation	181
7.5 Public impact	182
7.6 Perspectives of further research	183
References	185