

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
1 Narrative and new developments in the social sciences	1
Introduction	1
Definitions of narrative	3
Narrative and social research	5
Understanding narrative form	7
Temporality and causality within narrative	7
Evaluation and the meaning of narrative	8
Narrative, audiences, and social contexts	10
Temporality and the meaning of narratives	11
First-order and second-order narratives: the importance of narrative for sociologists	12
Organization of the book	13
Summary	15
Further reading	15
Exercise	16
Note	16
2 Listening to people’s stories: the use of narrative in qualitative interviews	17
The use of narratives in qualitative interviews: realist and constructivist approaches to research	18
Narratives in qualitative interviews	21
Reliability and validity	22

Internal validity	23
External validity	26
Eliciting stories in interviews	28
Asking the right questions	28
Collecting life histories – the use of a life history grid	31
The length of narrative interviews	32
Repeated interviews	32
Recording narrative interviews	33
Summary	33
Introductory books on qualitative interviewing	34
Readings for discussion	34
Notes	35
3 Interpreting people's stories: narrative approaches to the analysis of qualitative data	36
A framework for classifying methods of narrative analysis	37
Narrative approaches: a focus on content	39
Analyses focusing on the form or structure of narratives	42
Labov and Waletzky's structural model of narrative	42
Genre	46
The dynamics of plot development: progressive and regressive narratives	48
Narrative coherence	48
Narrative analysis that focuses on both content and form	49
Narrative in its social context	50
Preparing and transcribing data	51
Clean transcripts	52
Detailed transcribing: conversation analysis	53
Transcribing using Gee's units of discourse	54
Summary	56
Further reading	57
Readings for discussion	58
Notes	58

4 Collecting quantitative narratives – a contradiction in terms? 60

Research designs for collecting longitudinal data 61

Catch-up studies 65

The collection of event history data 65

Problems with retrospective life history data 66

The accuracy of recall data 66

Retrospective data and sample selection bias 70

Sample attrition 70

The narrative qualities of event history data 70

Cohort studies, narrative, and the life course approach 72

Summary 74

Further reading 74

Exercises 75

Notes 75

5 Statistical stories? The use of narrative in quantitative analysis 76

Event history modelling 77

Different approaches to event history analysis 79

Continuous time approaches to event history modelling 80

Continuous time event history analysis and narrative 82

Discrete time approaches to event history analysis 83

Individual heterogeneity 86

Discrete time event history analysis and narrative 87

Narrative positivism and event sequence analysis 88

Creating narratives from survey data – a person-centred strategy? 91

Summary 94

Further reading 94

Readings for discussion 95

Notes 95

6 Uncovering and understanding causal effects and processes	97
Narrative and causality: two modes of explanation	98
Establishing causality in quantitative research	100
Interaction effects	101
Direct and indirect causes: using quantitative analysis to understand causal processes	103
Proximate causes and basic causes	105
Causality in cross-sectional and longitudinal research	107
Omitted variables	108
Optimism about causality based on longitudinal data	109
Model uncertainty	110
Mechanisms	111
Summary	114
Further reading	114
Reading for discussion	115
Note	115
7 Narrative and identity: constructions of the subject in qualitative and quantitative research	116
The individual in quantitative research	117
Neglect of the individual as a unique and complex case	118
Neglect of the biographical trajectories of individuals	119
Neglect of the individual as an active agent and of the conceptual schema held by individuals	122
Problematizing the individual	123
Changing conceptions of the individual: the self in post-modern thought	123
The narrative constitution of identity: stability and change	124

Narrating the self in social context	126
'Ontological narratives' and 'public narratives'	127
The active narrator	129
Summary	131
Further reading	132
Readings for discussion	132
Notes	133
8 The ethical and political implications of using narrative in research	134
The ethics of using narrative in research	135
The ethics of narrative interviewing	135
The ethics of postal questionnaire studies	138
Ethics, narrative identity, and informed consent	140
Ethics and narrative analysis	141
Confidentiality	142
Narrative and the politics of research	144
Summary	150
Further reading	151
Reading for discussion	151
Note	151
9 The researcher as narrator: reflexivity in qualitative and quantitative research	152
Defining and understanding reflexivity	153
Reflexivity and the crisis of representation	154
Reflexivity and data collection	156
Reflexivity and the analysis of data	157
Reflexivity and qualitative analysis	157
Reflexivity and quantitative analysis	159
Reflexivity and longitudinal analysis	161
Reflexivity and writing	162
Summary	169

Narrating the self in social context	126
'Ontological narratives' and 'public narratives'	127
The active narrator	129
Summary	131
Further reading	132
Readings for discussion	132
Notes	133
8 The ethical and political implications of using narrative in research	134
The ethics of using narrative in research	135
The ethics of narrative interviewing	135
The ethics of postal questionnaire studies	138
Ethics, narrative identity, and informed consent	140
Ethics and narrative analysis	141
Confidentiality	142
Narrative and the politics of research	144
Summary	150
Further reading	151
Reading for discussion	151
Note	151
9 The researcher as narrator: reflexivity in qualitative and quantitative research	152
Defining and understanding reflexivity	153
Reflexivity and the crisis of representation	154
Reflexivity and data collection	156
Reflexivity and the analysis of data	157
Reflexivity and qualitative analysis	157
Reflexivity and quantitative analysis	159
Reflexivity and longitudinal analysis	161
Reflexivity and writing	162
Summary	169

Further reading	169
Exercise	170
Notes	170
10 Telling better stories? Combining qualitative and quantitative research	171
Extensive and intensive evidence and causality in social research	173
Combining qualitative and quantitative methods: life course research	176
Narrative and identity in qualitative and quantitative research	178
Writing up qualitative and quantitative research: narrative and reflexivity	181
Qualitative and quantitative research as different genres	184
Some conclusions	186
Summary	187
Further reading	187
Readings for discussion	188
Notes	188
Appendix: Details of some major longitudinal quantitative datasets	189
Glossary	199
References	205
Index	217