

Contents of Volumes I through V

VOLUME I. ECONOMIC FOUNDATIONS

Introduction: The Cairo Geniza Documents as a Source of Mediterranean Social History

- I. The Mediterranean Scene during the High Middle Ages
(969–1250)
- II. The Working People
- III. The World of Commerce and Finance
- IV. Travel and Seafaring

VOLUME II. THE COMMUNITY

- V. Communal Organization and Institutions
- VI. Education and the Professional Class
- VII. Interfaith Relations, Communal Autonomy, and Government Control

VOLUME III. (Chapter VIII) THE FAMILY

VOLUME IV. (Chapter IX) DAILY LIFE

VOLUME V. (Chapter X) THE INDIVIDUAL: PORTRAIT OF A MEDITERRANEAN PERSONALITY OF THE HIGH MIDDLE AGES AS REFLECTED IN THE CAIRO GENIZA

NOTE: The title originally planned for Chapter X, The Mediterranean Mind, was relinquished to avoid the erroneous impression that the personality emerging from the Geniza documents is regarded as representative of a hypothetical human type common to the Mediterranean area.

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                            |       |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| FOREWORD                                                                                                                                                                   | ix    |
| PREFACE                                                                                                                                                                    | xix   |
| AUTHOR'S NOTE                                                                                                                                                              | xxiii |
| ABBREVIATIONS                                                                                                                                                              | xxv   |
| MAP OF MEDIEVAL EGYPT                                                                                                                                                      | xxxii |
| X. THE INDIVIDUAL: Portrait of a MediterraneanPersonality of the High Middle Ages                                                                                  | 1 |
| Note on the Sources                                                                                                                                                        | 1     |
| A. A Social Being                                                                                                                                                   | 5     |
| 1. Gatherings                                                                                                                                                              | 5     |
| Introducing the people of the Geniza—Weekendsand holidays—Holy shrines and pilgrimages—Calls and visits, congratulations and condo-lences—Hospitality—Pastimes |       |
| 2. Challenges                                                                                                                                                              | 45    |
| Hard times—Poverty—Illness—Old age                                                                                                                                         |       |
| 3. Death                                                                                                                                                                   | 128   |
| Expectations and preparations—A communalevent—Living with the dead                                                                                                     |       |
| B. Awareness of Personality                                                                                                                                         | 187   |
| 1. The Ideal Person                                                                                                                                                        | 187   |
| Character study—The principal virtues—Honorand honesty                                                                                                                 |       |
| 2. "Your Noble Self." Considerateness                                                                                                                                      | 214   |
| The personal touch in letters to and fromwomen—Expressions of sensitivity—Moods                                                                                        |       |
| 3. Rank and renown                                                                                                                                                         | 254   |
| 4. Friendship and enmity                                                                                                                                                   | 272   |
| On the nature and history of friendship—Friendship among intellectuals—Breaking off—Envy and enmity                                                                |       |
| 5. Sex                                                                                                                                                                     | 307   |

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| C. The True Believer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 323 |
| 1. Trust in the Merciful                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 323 |
| 2. Close to God                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 332 |
| 3. Member of God's community                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 347 |
| 4. Schism and counterreformation                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 358 |
| The Karaite response to the fall of Jerusalem inJuly 1099—Counterreformation                                                                                                                                                                                                   |     |
| 5. Messianic expectations and the World to Come                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 391 |
| The World to Come                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |     |
| D. The Prestige of Scholarship                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 415 |
| A Survey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 415 |
| The Talmudic scholar and student of the Law—The physician and student of the sciences—Theastronomer and astrologer—The master of lan-guage—The poet                                                                                                                    |     |
| Seven Portraits                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 426 |
| An all-around education—Scholarship as a pro-fession—Scholarship as an avocation—Intercon-fessional learned contacts—Judah ha-Levi: Poetlaureate, religious thinker, communal leader,physician—Pious women—A perfect man with atragic fate: Abraham Maimonides |     |
| EPILOGUE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 496 |
| NOTES                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 503 |
| INDEX                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 645 |