

Contents

	PAGE
I THE IDEA OF CONSERVATISM	3
II BURKE AND THE POLITICS OF PRESCRIPTION	11
1. Burke's career	11
2. The radical systems	21
3. Providence and humility	25
4. Prejudice and prescription	33
5. The rights of civil social man	42
6. Equality and aristocracy	51
7. The principle of order	57
III JOHN ADAMS AND LIBERTY UNDER LAW	62
1. Federalists and Republicans	62
2. Alexander Hamilton	65
3. Fisher Ames' vaticinations	70
4. John Adams as psychologist	75
5. The aristocracy of nature	82
6. American constitutions	86
7. Marshall and the metamorphosis of federalism	96
IV ROMANTICS AND UTILITARIANS	99
1. Benthamism and Walter Scott	99
2. Canning and enlightened conservatism	108
3. Coleridge and conservative ideas	115
V SOUTHERN CONSERVATISM: RANDOLPH AND CALHOUN	130
1. Southern impulses	130
2. Randolph on the peril of positive legislation	134
3. The rights of minorities: Calhoun	146
4. The valor of the South	157

	PAGE
VI LIBERAL CONSERVATIVES: MACAULAY, COOPER, TOCQUEVILLE	161
1. Burke's influence upon liberalism	161
2. Macaulay on democracy	163
3. Fenimore Cooper and a gentleman's America	171
4. Tocqueville on democratic despotism	178
VII TRANSITIONAL CONSERVATISM: NEW ENGLAND SKETCHES	196
1. Industrialism as a leveller	196
2. John Quincy Adams and progress: his aspirations and his failure	201
3. The illusions of transcendentalism	209
4. Brownson on the conservative power of Catholicism	213
5. Nathaniel Hawthorne: society and sin	218
VIII CONSERVATISM WITH IMAGINATION: DISRAELI AND NEWMAN	227
1. Marx's materialism; and the fruits of liberalism	227
2. Disraeli and Tory loyalties	232
3. Newman: the sources of knowledge and the idea of education	243
4. The age of discussion: Bagehot	257
IX LEGAL AND HISTORICAL CONSERVATISM: A TIME OF FOREBODING	260
1. Liberalism moves toward collectivism: John Stuart Mill, Comte, and positivism	260
2. Stephen on the ends of life and politics	265
3. Maine: status and contract	275
4. Lecky: illiberal democracy	285
X CONSERVATISM FRUSTRATED: AMERICA, 1865-1918	294
1. The Gilded Age	294
2. James Russell Lowell's perplexities	297
3. Godkin on democratic opinion	303
4. Henry Adams on the degradation of the democratic dogma	310
5. Brooks Adams and a world of terrible energies	319

	PAGE
XI ENGLISH CONSERVATISM ADRIFT: THE TWENTIETH CENTURY	327
1. The end of aristocratic politics: 1906	327
2. George Gissing and the Nether World	331
3. Arthur Balfour: his spiritual conservatism; and the tide of socialism	337
4. The books of W. H. Mallock: a conservative synthesis. Positivism deflated; socialism vs. ability	345
5. A dreary conservatism between wars	357
XII CRITICAL CONSERVATISM: BABBITT, MORE, SANTAYANA	362
1. Pragmatism: the fumbling of America	362
2. Irving Babbitt's humanism: the higher will in a democracy	366
3. Paul Elmer More on justice and faith	377
4. George Santayana buries liberalism	386
5. America in search of ideas	394
XIII THE RECRUDESCENCE OF CONSERVATISM	398
1. Old radicalisms fade	398
2. The planners' state and the new elite	407
3. The conservatives' task; and their prospects in Britain	414
4. The fertility of conservative thought in the United States: critics and economists. Possible forms of conservative society	418
5. The plan of action for American conservatives. America as a destructive force; and as the conservator of civilization	423
NOTES	429
BIBLIOGRAPHY	441
INDEX	452