
Contents

Contributors	ix
Introduction	1
GIANNI FRANCESETTI, MICHELA GECELE, AND PAOLO MIGONE
1 Working in the interpersonal field: Two clinical narratives	5
DONNEL B. STERN
2 Field perspective in relational psychoanalysis: Response to Donnel Stern	21
DAN BLOOM
3 Post-Bionian field theory and the ethical refounding of psychoanalysis	32
GIUSEPPE CIVITARESE
4 Field perspective in Gestalt therapy: Is a dialogue possible with post-Bionian psychoanalysis?	52
JEAN-MARIE ROBINE
5 "Where everything shivers and speaks": Precious fragments of experience	62
MICHELA GECELE
6 "Necessary light that makes me the chosen host": Field theories in Gestalt therapy and clinical practice	81
GIANNI FRANCESETTI
7 Discussion for Gianni Francesetti and Michela Gecele	108
DONNA ORANGE
8 Anna: A clinical case study	115
PAOLA ZARINI

9	Affects and dissociative field: Discussion of the clinical case by Paola Zarini	123
	SUSANNA FEDERICI AND GIANNI NEBBIOSI
10	Anna KO	132
	FABIO RIVARA
11	“We wish you a good life, Anna!”: A field-theory-informed view of Gestalt therapy	147
	JAN ROUBAL
12	What we see and do depends on the point from where we look	159
	BEATRIX WIMMER
13	Field and psychotherapy: Attempting a new paradigm	167
	ANNIBALE BERTOLA
14	Historical remarks on the relationship between Gestalt therapy and psychoanalysis	178
	BERND BOCIAN
	Index	216