

CONTENTS

Foreword      xii

Geoffrey Robertson QC

Preface      xvii

Introduction      1

The purpose and content of this book      2

The structure of this book      5

The context of this book      9

1 FAIR AND EXPEDITIOUS INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL TRIALS      13

Introduction      13

Fair-trial rights      15

Requirement that the proceedings be public      21

Adequate time and facilities to prepare a defence      27

    Trial without undue delay      29

    Equality of arms      32

The right to confront witnesses      43

    Written evidence in lieu of oral testimony      47

    Admission of adjudicated facts      50

The right to counsel and to self-representation      53

    Defence counsel representation in international criminal courts and tribunals      55

    Self-representation      57

    Standby counsel      61

    Imposition of counsel      63

Expeditious trials      63

Application and interpretation of human rights by the
ICTY      69

2	THE MILOŠEVIĆ PROSECUTION CASE – GETTING OFF ON THE WRONG FOOT	79
	Content and scope of the Milošević indictments	80
	The Kosovo indictment	81
	The prosecution case concerning Kosovo	81
	The Croatia and Bosnia indictments	83
	The prosecution case concerning Croatia and Bosnia	84
	The context in which the crimes were committed	84
	Executing the plan	86
	The scope of the charges	88
	Milošević's role and responsibility	88
	The prosecution case on 'Greater Serbia'	90
	Pleading practice and problems with the Milošević indictments	92
	The form of the indictment	93
	Review of indictments	95
	Analysis of the Milošević indictments	96
	The Kosovo indictment	96
	The first Lazarević Decision on the form of the indictment	97
	Defects in the form of the Milošević Kosovo indictment	104
	Defects in the form of the Croatia and Bosnia indictments	107
	Conclusion on the defects in the three indictments	108
	Joinder of the Milošević indictments	115
	Joinder application before the Trial Chamber	115
	Joinder application on Appeal	118
	Rule 98 bis (judgement of acquittal) decision	121
	Did Milošević intend to commit genocide?	123
	Dismissal of numerous allegations in Croatia and Bosnia indictments	126
	Conclusion	127
	Conclusion	128
3	CASE MANAGEMENT CHALLENGES IN THE MILOŠEVIĆ TRIAL	131
	Managing the Milošević case	133

The prosecution case	133
Scope of the prosecution case	133
Trial Chamber's management of the prosecution case	142
The defence case	153
Conduct of the defence case	153
Trial Chamber's management of the defence case	155
Consideration by the Trial Chamber of more radical case management approaches	163
Severance of one or more indictments	163
Case management principles in national and international criminal law	170
Case management in common law systems	171
Caseflow management or differential case management	172
Individual case management	174
The willingness and capacity of judges to manage cases	176
Case management in civil law systems	178
Germany	179
Belgium	180
France	181
Case management in international criminal law	181
The framework for best case management practice in international criminal law	182
Case management at the ICTY	188
Case management regulations at the ICTY	189
Learning from the Milošević case	193
The Orić case	194
The Prlić case	195
The Milutinović et al. case	197
Conclusion	199

4 REPRESENTATION AND RESOURCE ISSUES IN INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW 205

Self-representation in international criminal law – limitations and qualifications on that right	206
The Milošević Decisions – defining the limits of the right to self-representation	208
Early history	208
Milošević – First Reasoned Decision of 4 April 2003	209
Removing the right to self-representation	211

Health of the Accused	211
Second Reasoned Decision of 22 September 2004	213
Appeals Chamber Decision of 1 November 2004	218
Self-representation issues arising in other international criminal courts and tribunals	222
The Special Court for Sierra Leone	222
The Norman Decision	222
The Gbao Decision	224
The ICTR	226
The Barayagwiza Decision	226
The Ntahobali Decision	227
The ICTY	228
The First Šešelj Decision	228
The Second Šešelj Decision	230
The First Appeals Chamber Šešelj Decision	232
The Second Appeals Chamber Šešelj Decision	233
Self-representation in the Krajišnik case	236
The Supreme Iraqi Criminal Tribunal (SICT)	238
Practical difficulties of imposing counsel on uncooperative accused	239
Resources and facilities available to Milošević	245
The use of amici curiae in international criminal law	246
The role of amicus curiae in international criminal law	246
Definition	246
Amicus curiae in the ICTY and ICTR	246
Amicus curiae in the Special Court for Sierra Leone	249
Amicus curiae in the International Criminal Court	250
Conclusion	251
Role of amici curiae in the Milošević case	251
Actual assistance provided to the accused by the amici curiae	254
The future for the innovative use of amicus curiae in complex international criminal trials	256
The provision of 'legal associates' in the Milošević trial	258
Resource issues in international criminal trials – Milošević and other senior-level accused	260

	Concluding comments on resource issues and the equality of arms	263
	Conclusion	265
5	CONCLUSIONS	271
	The prosecution case must be focused, comprehensible and manageable	275
	The future of case management in complex international criminal law cases	279
	Managing resource and representation issues in complex international criminal law cases	284
	The outdated common law/civil law divide: time for international criminal law to evolve	286
	The need to consider a new appellate jurisdiction for international criminal law	288
	After Milošević : the future of complex international criminal trials	291
	Index	294