

Focus: Constitutional Theory as Literature in the 19th-Century Anglosphere

Editorial

Matteo Nicolini and Enrico Andreoli

Constitutional Theory as Literature in the 19th-Century Anglosphere — 225

Focus

Richard Mullender

Charles Dickens, Albert Venn Dicey, and Openness in the Anglosphere — 229

Enrico Andreoli

Rhetoric and Empire: Constitutional Thought and Literature in the 19th-Century Anglosphere — 259

Adam Rowe and Ruth Houghton

Authoring the Nation: Madame de Staël and the Literary Origins of the State — 281

Giacomo Delledonne

The End of the Victorian Era: Reflections on an Edwardian Viewpoint — 309

Leila Neti

Illustrating the Indian Penal Code: Bigamy, the Victorian Novel, and the Formation of National Identity — 321

Matteo Nicolini

The Christian Year* – Still Needed? John Keble on the ‘Co-Extensiveness’ of Church and State — 343

Research

Jann Maatz

We Have Never Been Persons! — 371

Satya Prasoon and Shilpi Singh

A Tragic Photograph: Emotional Journey of a Political Spectator — 387

Talya Deibel

Thoughts, Words, and Promises: Fides and the Legal Significance of the Inner Sphere — 411