

Contents

List of figures	viii
List of tables	ix
Acknowledgements	x
List of abbreviations	xiii
1 Introduction	1
2 What can cognitive linguistics offer for conflict studies?	13
3 The choreography of Northern Ireland: Historical and political background	35
4 Gestalt and structural configuration	59
5 Attention and salience	95
6 Judgement and comparison	129
7 Positioning and perspective	169
8 Conclusion: Managing conflict via discourse	211
Appendix: A short chronology of events in post-Agreement NI	221
Notes	223
References	239
Index	261
7.1 Social deixis in political discourse	175
7.2 Spatial cognition and the occupation of space by different social groups	181
7.3 Shared identities in NI and spatial anchor points	190
7.4 Negation and alternative spaces	199