Contents

List of Illustrative Material vii
Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Not Partial, Prejudiced or Ignorant: The Study of Queens and Queenship in Medieval Europe 1

The geographic contours of European queenship 13
The temporal boundaries of medieval queenship 15
Sources and methods 20
Theoretical frameworks 24
Organization of the book 28
A note on place names, translations and proper names 28

1 Theme and Variations: Roman, Barbarian and Christian Societies in the Fashioning of Medieval Queenship, c. 300–700 31

Eastern Roman Empire and early Byzantine Empire 39
Frankish and Merovingian realms 53
Early medieval Britain and Ireland 64
The Iberian Peninsula and Italy 70
Conclusions 73
For further research 75

2 Legitimizing the King's Wife and Bed-Companion, c. 700–1100 79

The Byzantine Empire 86
The Carolingian Empire 91
Saxon and Ottonian empresses 98

Early Capetian France 100
England, Scotland and Wales 103
Christian Iberia 115
Eastern Europe, Scandinavia and Kievan Rus' 117
Conclusions 119
For further research 121

3 'The Link of Conjugal Troth': Queenship as Family Practice, c. 1100–1350 123
England and Scotland 131
France 150
The Iberian Kingdoms: León, Castile, the Crown of Aragon and Portugal 160
The Mediterranean: the Byzantine Empire, Latin Crusader kingdoms and Italy 169
The Empire, central and northern Europe 172
Conclusions 176
For further research 179

4 Queenship in a Crisis of Monarchy, c. 1350–1500 183
A woman writing about queens: Christine de Pizan and medieval political theory 192
France 195
England 203
Scotland 219
Iberia: Castile, the Crown of Aragon and Portugal 225
The Empire, Hungary, Poland and Scandinavia 235
Conclusions 238
For further research 242

5 The Transformation of Queenship from Medieval to Early Modern Europe 247

Notes 259
For Further Reading 291
Bibliography 301
Index 339