

Contents

Foreword	viii
Preface	x
1 Introduction to complex property rights	1
1.1 Why property rights matter today	1
1.2 Rethinking property rights: from binary categories to institutional complexity	3
1.3 Aims and contributions of the book	5
1.4 Structure of the book	7
PART I THEORETICAL BACKGROUND
2 The nature of property rights	10
2.1 Defining property rights as foundational to human activities	10
2.2 Interests, needs, and benefits	12
2.3 Elementary entitlements and the bundle of rights	13
2.4 A threefold classification of elementary property entitlements	15
2.5 Chapter summary	17
3 Establishing and allocating property rights	19
3.1 The establishment of property rights over resources as a process of interaction between individuals and communities	19
3.2 Principles of allocating property rights over resources	20
3.3 Allocating property rights over activities and organisations	23
3.4 Sources of the complexity of property rights	24
3.5 Implications for justice, responsibility, and human rights	25
3.6 Chapter summary	27
PART II COMPLEX PRIVATE-COMMON PROPERTY RIGHTS
4 Types of entitlements in the theory of private-common property rights	30

4.1	Classifications of property rights: private vs. public	30
4.2	Problems with the definition of public ownership	33
4.3	From public goods to club entitlements: Buchanan vs. Samuelson	36
4.4	Theoretical elaboration of elementary entitlements	41
4.5	Economic foundations of private-common property rights	46
4.6	Chapter summary	58
5	Private-common property rights as institutions	59
5.1	The multi-layered structure of institutions and complex property rights	59
5.2	Degree of privateness or collectiveness of complex property rights	62
5.3	Planning and the market as interdependent modes of institutional coordination	66
5.4	Chapter summary	69
PART III INSTITUTIONAL TRANSFORMATIONS AND SUSTAINABLE NATURAL RESOURCE GOVERNANCE
6	Institutional transformations in governing anthropogenic and natural resources	72
6.1	Coase's proviso and the drivers of institutional transformation: the role of values, costs, and initiators	72
6.2	Transaction costs: definition, typology, and their role in establishing property rights	74
6.3	Institutional transformation and the dynamics of property rights change	79
6.4	From origin to transformation: the institutional evolution of property rights	83
6.5	Establishing property rights over natural (non-anthropogenic) resources	85
6.6	Establishing property rights over human-made resources	94
6.7	Establishing property rights over anthropogenic resources	99
6.8	The evolution of established property rights over utilised resources	101
6.9	Chapter summary	109
7	Practical implications of the theory of complex property rights	111
7.1	The divergence between environmental and ecological economics in sustainability debates	112
7.2	Identifying the key factors and unpacking the barriers to sustainability	115

7.3	The complex property rights theory approach to sustainable development	130
7.4	Case studies illustrating challenges and strategies for implementing sustainable natural resource governance	138
7.5	Chapter summary	151
8	Policy recommendations and conclusions	153
8.1	Policy recommendations for sustainable natural resource governance	153
8.2	Concluding remarks	164
	References	169
	Index	186