

Contents

Series Foreword	vii
Foreword by Ruth Wilson Gilmore	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Is Cleaning a Decolonial Struggle?	1
“Slow Violence”	3
Radical Hope	8
The Elemental	10
Cleaning, Cleanliness, Cleansing	12
Water, an Elemental	14
Women as a Praxis	15
Exiting Colonial Dystopia	16
Polluting, Contaminating, Cleaning Up	17
The Racial Politics of Wasting and Cleaning Up	19
Race, Gender, Capital, and Cleaning	20
The Elemental of Cleaning	22
The Distribution of Time according to Class and Race	25
Why Must Cleaners Be Invisible?	28
The Denial of Vital Needs	30
How to Name the Age of Waste and Wasting	34
Racism and Waste	45
The Racial Stain of Cleanliness	46

The Politics of the Elemental	51
The Marxist Feminist Theory of Social Reproduction	60
The Whitening of Cleanliness	66
Olfactory Racism	68
Wasting and Protecting under Racial Capitalism	73
The Pleasure of Water	77
The Enclosure of Water	78
Weaponizing Water	82
Palestine under Colonial Water Politics	89
Occupying Armies and Water Contamination	93
Engineering Water and New Forms of Privatization	94
Colonialism Lays Waste	95
Is Colonialism a Direct Cause of Climate Disaster?	98
The Wasting of French Colonialism-Imperialism	100
The French Army, Science, Stolen Land	102
Mining Is Wasting	105
Criminalization of Activists	111
Antiracist Politics of Breathing	113
The Politics of Refusal	122
Anti-Cleaning Politics	124
Notes	131
Author Biography	169