

Table of Contents

I	The Importance of Academic Self-care	9
II	The Biggest Challenges Facing Young Academics	17
	1 Exhaustion	19
	2 Perfectionism	23
	3 Insecurity and Fear of Failure	26
	4 Lack of Encouragement or Positive Reinforcement	29
	5 Cynicism	31
	6 Narcissism	33
	7 Publishing Addiction	36
	8 Publication Pressure	39
	9 Hierarchical Structures	42
	10 Poor Doctoral Supervision and Lack of Role Models	45
III	34 Ways to Stay Happy in Academia	49
	1. Make time to focus	52
	2. Allow time for downtime	53
	3. Avoid excessive use of social media	54
	4. Manage your time effectively	55
	5. Have lunch with colleagues	57
	6. Stop romanticising an academic career	58
	7. Keep a healthy perspective	59
	8. Acknowledge the role of chance	60
	9. Don't let your grades define you	61
	10. Accept that your work has a short lifespan	62
	11. Be aware that much of what we say is meaningless	63
	12. Dare to make mistakes	65

13.	Don't be afraid to change course	66
14.	Normalise changing your opinion	68
15.	Share problems with colleagues	69
16.	Avoid comparing yourself with others	70
17.	Stop trying to change people	72
18.	Concentrate on your qualities, not your shortcomings	73
19.	Say 'no' more often	74
20.	Stop working with people who make you feel miserable	75
21.	Take early signs of anxiety seriously	77
22.	Steer clear of workplace politics	78
23.	Share problems with family or friends	79
24.	Stop working on weekends	80
25.	Turn your bed into a temple	81
26.	Make exercise part of your daily routine	82
27.	Strive for equanimity	83
28.	Be humble	84
29.	Quit your website	86
30.	Accept suffering as part of academic life	87
31.	Try a change of scenery	88
32.	Don't forget to have fun: happiness is the road to success	89
33.	Strive to be autonomous	90
34.	Dare to ask the question of questions	91
IV	Beyond Self-help: Finding the Right Therapist	95
V	Moving Towards an Empowering Academic Environment	101
	References	108
	Acknowledgements	110