Contents

List of figures ix
List of contributors xi

1 Introduction: Exploring the modelling capacities of social housing 1
MIKKEL HØGHØJ, METTE MY MADSEN, ANNE CORLIN AND MORTEN NIELSEN

PART I
Inventing and implementing new models of housing 21

2 A Danish Kasbah? The Mediterranean-Islamic homes and town centres as models of Danish dense-low housing (1950s–1980s) 23
DORIAN BIANCO

3 Everything in its right place: Henry Roberts' model houses and the fabrication of the model family 40
JOSHUA TAN

4 Planning, play, and participation: the extra-parliamentary residents' playground at Høje Gladsaxe (1969) as a model for sociospatial transformation and engaging urban citizenship 54
MARTIN SØBERG

PART II
Scales and complexity of planning and design 69

5 Model assemblages: arranging for multiplicity in Stockholm's 1952 General Plan 71
SUED FERREIRA AND JOHAN PRIES

6 An architecture of paperwork: the London County Council's collaborative bureaucracy 87
JESSE HONSA

7 Ecocritical domography 101
ANTONIO BERNACCHI AND ALICIA LAZZARONI

PART III
Contemporary projects of intervention and transformation 115

8 Artistic interventions in large-scale urban transformation projects 117
LINE MARIE BRUUN JESPERSEN AND RUNE CHRISTIAN BACH

9 The role of private developers in the social transformation of social housing estates 129
ANNE CLEMENTSEN

10 Reconfiguring orders of worth: a comparative analysis of densification processes of social housing estates in Denmark and Japan 143
NICOLA C. THOMAS

PART IV
Everyday appropriations and resident practices 157

11 Mimicking municipal models: the potentials and pitfalls of resident-driven development in forced regeneration of Danish non-profit housing 159
ADAM VENG

12 Whose place is it? Remodelling and reappropriating Danish social housing 174
MARIE STENDER

13 Social housing beyond the city: migration and remote productions of welfare on the Danish Island of Lolland 189
TRINE BRINKMANN

14 Epilogue: Models that make us act 202
ALBENA YANEVA

Index 211