

Contents

Maps and Illustrations ix

Acknowledgments xi

Abbreviations xv

A Note on Transliteration and Nomenclature xvii

Introduction 3

Part I: Mennonite Origins

- 1 Foundations: An Ancient Faith, a Swiss Reformation, and Anabaptist Renewal 17
- 2 Melchoir, Münster, and Menno: From Early Dutch (Melchiorite) Anabaptists to Mennonites 32
- 3 A Faith Community on the Move: Mennonites, Poland, and Prussia, 1536–1800 49

Part II: Mennonites in Imperial Russia

- 4 A New Homeland in New Russia: Mennonite Settlement in the Russian Empire, 1789–1830 69
- 5 Pietistic Progressivism: Johann Cornies and the Transformation of Russian Mennonitism, 1800–1848 86
- 6 A Community in Crisis: A Divided Faith, the Revolt of the Landless, and Threatened Military Service, 1860–1874 105
- 7 From Crisis to Consolidation: The Flourishing of Russian Mennonitism, 1865–1883 123

- 8 Glory Days: The Apogee of Russian
Mennonitism, 1883–1904 142
- 9 Confession or Sect? German or German-Speaking?
Mennonite Identity Politics on the Edge of the Abyss, 1881–1917 161

Part III: Mennonites in the Soviet Era

- 10 After Eichenfeld: Soviet-Era Mennonites between Reconstruction and Emigration, 1917–1927 183
- 11 When God Leads You into the Wilderness: Mennonites
in the Stalinist Crucible, 1927–1934 205
- 12 The Road to Rochevda: Soviet Terror, Nazi Occupation, and Stalinist Repatriation, 1934–1953 228
- 13 Detour to Dzhetisai: The Soviet Mennonite Renaissance in Stalin's Shadow, 1953–1991 251
- 14 Coda: Zaporozhe 1989. One Story Ends and Another
Begins 274

Notes 289

Bibliography 355

Index 397