

Contents

List of illustrations . . . . .	7
Acknowledgements . . . . .	11
Introduction . . . . .	13
Necessary confession . . . . .	13
Generic constraints . . . . .	14
Zenon Fajfer and _____'s Mute-Eye-Late . . . . .	16
Overview of the content . . . . .	20
PART ONE: INBETWEENNESS
Hybridity . . . . .	25
Liberature: an appendix to a dictionary of literary terms . . . . .	31
PART TWO: LIBERATURE AND RELATED CONCEPTS
Literature in the form of the book . . . . .	41
Liberature and the artist's book . . . . .	41
Book is a meaningful space . . . . .	45
Book is a navigating device . . . . .	50
Conceptual metaphors in liberature . . . . .	57
B.S. Johnson: breaking through the walls of fiction. . . . .	57
William H. Gass's material metaphors . . . . .	62
Books are buildings . . . . .	65
Book is a body. . . . .	70

Poetics of presence . . . . .	77
Presentification . . . . .	77
Literary work is an event . . . . .	80
Book is a performative space . . . . .	85
Liberature and multimodality . . . . .	87
The Intermedia . . . . .	87
Liberature and concrete poetry . . . . .	90
Liberature and multimodal literature . . . . .	96
PART THREE: THE QUESTION OF GENRE
Genre trouble . . . . .	109
A “venerable error” . . . . .	109
A demise or regeneration of the (literary) species? . . . . .	111
Categorising and (re)conceptualising . . . . .	123
Ideas and shadows . . . . .	123
The idea of liberature or what is a concept? . . . . .	126
A theory of liberature . . . . .	132
Dimensions of genre . . . . .	135
Structural, rhetorical and thematic dimensions . . . . .	135
Does liberature have a thematic dimension? . . . . .	137
Genre functions . . . . .	145
Genre as a (proto)type . . . . .	145
Literary soleras: sommeliers . . . . .	148
Literary soleras: winemakers . . . . .	154
Classifying and cataloguing . . . . .	157
Patching the system. . . . .	157
Forms of knowing . . . . .	160
Conclusion . . . . .	165
Liberature: what’s in the name? . . . . .	165
Bibliography . . . . .	171
Author and subject index . . . . .	191