

Table of contents

Foreword: twenty years after...

1. Interview technique and explicitation of action

Traces; observables and verbalizations

From interrogation to questioning: evolution of the needs

Three major goals for the explicitation interview

Plan of the book

2. Guide the verbalization towards the experience of effective action

The domains of verbalization

The satellite information of action

Singular Action, a real and specified task

Guidance and non-directiveness in explicitation

3. Speech position

The speech positions

The identification of embodied speech position

Guiding towards embodied speech position

In summary

4. Pre-reflective dimension of action

Action is an autonomous source of knowledge

The Model of becoming aware

The importance of the questioning that elicits a description

In summary

5. Concrete memory and sensory questioning

A theoretical framework: concrete memory

Two professional fields that developed the deliberate use of concrete memory: theatre and psychotherapy

Practicing explicitation: look out for the "madeleine"!

In summary

6. The relational dimension

The contractual dimension of the interview

Initiating communication: establishing contact and synchronisation

In summary

7. Initiating and focusing

The functions of the relaunches and the framework of implementation

Beginning and type of exchange

Focus the exchange

8. Elucidate

The formulation of the relaunches in elucidation

Elucidation and granularity of the description

The connecting threads

In summary

9. Regulate the exchange

Regulate to achieve the conditions of verbalization of the lived action

Regulate to enable exchange

10. Implementing the explicitation interview

It's easier to do than to say

Prerequisites for training?

Difficulties in training for an interview technique

Outline of a micro-genesis of the acquisition of competence

Training for the explicitation interview?

11. A research program

From "experience of lived action" to lived experience

The multiplicity of "places of consciousness" or the introducing the "dissociated"

The meaning of explicitation for phenomenology and cognitive sciences

Glossary of Explicitation