Chapter 1
Introduction.....	5
Dance – at the Faculty of Health Sciences.....	6
Experienced dancers as experts in movement.....	7
Choosing 13 dancers.....	8
Reading guide.....	9
Overview of the chapters.....	9
Chapter 2
Mapping Trajectories of Dance Research.....	13
Concepts of movement and discursive practice in dance.....	14
Laban's theory and concepts of movement.....	15
Values and limitations of the Laban system.....	17
Laban contextualised.....	19
Analysis of dance performances.....	21
Movement in dance and in everyday life.....	21
Discursive practice in dance.....	23
Lived experience.....	25
Techniques of the dance body.....	27
Trajectories of dance research in Denmark.....	29
Phenomenological investigations in dance practice.....	30
Overview of phenomenological works - following Rouhiainen.....	31
Sheets-Johnstone's phenomenology of dance.....	31
The minded body.....	33
Bodies moving and moved.....	33
In dialogue with transformative lives.....	34
Summing up.....	36
Chapter 3
Theoretical Position.....	39
Husserl's transcendental phenomenology.....	40

Intentionality	41
Transcendental phenomenology	42
Caught in a solipsistic paradigm?	44
Constitution – a threefold process.....	45
Time and pre-reflective self-awareness	46
Kinaesthesia and the functional body	47
The lifeworld.....	48
Merleau-Ponty’s existential phenomenology.....	49
Anchored in the body	51
Intersubjectivity	53
The chiasm – body and world intertwined.....	55
Pre-objective analysis	57
Phenomenological descriptions of movement.....	59
Movement bound to perception	59
Kinaesthesia	61
Self-movement	62
Losing sight of experience as lived.....	64
Body-schema and proprioception	66
Altering the body-schema	68
Phenomenology and qualitative studies	69
Phenomenology and introspection	70
Phenomenological descriptions of dance	71
Exploring subjectivity in dance.....	71
Phenomenology and empirical data	73
Dancers as expert movers	74
Framing.....	75
An active process of the subject.....	76
Framing and premises	78
Performances as situations of communication.....	79
Summing up.....	80
Chapter 4
The Dancers	83
Biography – being a dancer myself	84

The dancers	86
The Royal Danish Ballet.....	87
Ballet technique and training.....	88
The Bournonville technique.....	90
Introduction to the four ballet dancers.....	92
Modern/new dance	94
Techniques of new dance.....	95
Body Mind Centering (BMC).....	98
Improvisation.....	100
Magpie Music Dance Company	101
Improvisation techniques of Magpie.....	102
The Magpie dancers.....	104
Independent dancers	106
Three different dancers working in modern/new dance.....	106
The post-butoh dancers.....	108
The training of the post-butoh dancers.....	109
Expressive anatomy.....	110
The two post-butoh dancers.....	111
Information given to the dancers about the project	111
Summing up	112

Chapter 5

Research Method and Analysis	115
Generating data	116
Studying lived experience.....	117
Constructing the field.....	118
Autobiography and fieldwork.....	120
Participant observation.....	121
Anchored participation.....	124
Participation among dancers.....	126
Practice as research.....	127
Language.....	130
Structuring the fieldwork.....	134
The interview guide.....	136

Interviewing and transcribing	139
Co-editing	141
Analysis – an emergent process	144
Culture – and intersubjectivity	145
Line-by-line reading	146
Categorising	147
Themes	150
Presentation of empirical data and analysis	152
Chapter 6
Space and Movement	153
Framing of space	154
Re-creating space	155
Geographical adjustments	156
Extending movement into spaces.....	158
Analysis: Moving in Space	159
Analysis: Connecting to space through gravity	161
Analysis: Geometrical space	162
Creating space	162
Space as the main thing.....	163
Becoming space	164
Playing with traces	165
Sense awareness and spatial relation	166
Analysis: Space as a medium of relations.....	167
Transforming space	169
Energy and space	171
Transparency.....	174
Expansion in space.....	175
Analysis: In exchange with space	176
Space and movement – a synthesis	179
Space unfolds as interaction.....	179
Experiencing time before space	182
Lived experience unfolding space.....	185
Summing up	187

Chapter 7

Intervals	189
Awareness in performance	189
Performing a character in a ballet	189
Improvisation – juggling with sense foci	190
Awareness in some choreographed pieces of modern/new dance	193
Analysis: Awareness in performance	194
Analysis: Body-as-subject	196
The importance of the interval – in performance	198

Chapter 8

Sensing in movement	201
Framing of the body in movement	202
The body as object	203
The ideal body	203
Weight as centred, balanced and aligned	205
Second nature	205
Steps and emotions	207
Musicality	209
Analysis: The body also as subject of movement	210
The body as object and subject – the musculoskeletal body	213
The logic of the body	213
Body consciousness and sensing	214
Recognising the logic of the body	216
Weight as de-centred and partnering gravity	219
Analysis: The logic of the body	222
Analysis: Sense of weight centred round proprioception	223
Analysis: Investigating the body ‘itself’	224
The body as object and subject – transformative powers and corporeal depths	225
Transformative powers	225
Control of energy	228
Weight as different kinds of quality	230
Analysis: Imagination and energy	232
Analysis: Anatomical investigations of the lived body.	233

Analysis: Transformative powers	235
Synthesis: Inside out and outside in	236
Body as subject and object in movement.....	236
Proprioception and sensing	238
The complexity of the inside out and outside in	239
Synthesis: Sensing in movement	241
Sensing before senses.....	244
Perceptual states and sensory landscapes.....	245
Synthesis: The weight of the body	246
Being a weighted body in movement.....	247
Summing up.....	248

Chapter 9

Processes of Movement.....	251
Former experiences and presence	251
Structuring the chapter	252
Introducing Bergson – according to Merleau-Ponty	253
Relying on ‘muscle memory’	254
Analysis: The music of muscle memory.....	257
Synthesis: Kinetic melodies	258
Synthesis: Music incorporated	260
Investigating memory	261
Experts in perceptual states.....	261
‘Traces left in the body’ and ‘the memory of the organs’	262
Synthesis: The pre-reflective and performative body	264
Synthesis: The performative body and perceptual states	266
Bergson and movement	267
Bergson on memories - ... related to dance	269
Unfolding memory	272
Summing up.....	273

Chapter 10

Conclusion.....	275
Activating space in movement.....	276
Sensing in movement.....	276

Analysis: Transformative powers	235
Synthesis: Inside out and outside in	236
Body as subject and object in movement.....	236
Proprioception and sensing	238
The complexity of the inside out and outside in	239
Synthesis: Sensing in movement	241
Sensing before senses.....	244
Perceptual states and sensory landscapes.....	245
Synthesis: The weight of the body	246
Being a weighted body in movement.....	247
Summing up.....	248

Chapter 9

Processes of Movement.....	251
Former experiences and presence	251
Structuring the chapter	252
Introducing Bergson – according to Merleau-Ponty.....	253
Relying on ‘muscle memory’	254
Analysis: The music of muscle memory.....	257
Synthesis: Kinetic melodies	258
Synthesis: Music incorporated	260
Investigating memory	261
Experts in perceptual states.....	261
‘Traces left in the body’ and ‘the memory of the organs’	262
Synthesis: The pre-reflective and performative body	264
Synthesis: The performative body and perceptual states	266
Bergson and movement	267
Bergson on memories - ... related to dance	269
Unfolding memory	272
Summing up.....	273

Chapter 10

Conclusion.....	275
Activating space in movement.....	276
Sensing in movement.....	276

Processing former experiences in movement..... 277

Suggestions for practice-based teaching..... 278
