

Contents

Foreword by Alan Walker	xi
Preface and Acknowledgments	xiii
1. The Meaning of Technique	1
2. The Early Clavier Methods	9
3. The Beginnings of the Piano	35
4. Mozart and the Early Piano Technique	49
5. Hummel: The Culmination of the Viennese Era	65
6. The Dynamic Beethoven Technique	81
7. Czerny: Technique Personified	103
8. The Early Methodology	121
9. The Lyricism of Chopin	143
10. Liszt and Virtuoso Technique	171
11. The Schumann Circle	197
12. The Beginnings of Modern Technical Methods	229
13. The Leschetizky Influence	271
14. Russian Nationalism	287
15. The French School	315
16. Breithaupt and Weight Technique	329
17. The English School: Matthay; His Pupils and Colleagues	361
18. Ortmann: Piano Technique Comes of Age	407
19. Contemporary Technical Thought	447
20. The Perspectives of an Enlightened Piano Technique	507

Appendices

1. The Aesthetic Imperative	519
2. Mental and Psychological Control	523
3. An Intellectual Grasp of Basic Technical Knowledge	525
4. Isolated Movements	528
5. Coordinated Movements	531
6. Muscular Coordination	534
7. The Kinesthetic Sense	539
8. Posture	543
9. Means for Specific Technical Development	545
10. Historical Concepts and Perspectives of Piano Technical Thought	554
11. Supplementary Bibliography	558
Bibliography	567
Glossary	591
Index	593