

CONTENTS

---

Figures, tables and boxes

Acknowledgements

Abbreviations

Glossary

Foreword by John Muellbauer

1 Introduction

- 1.1 What is land?
- 1.2 What is the value of land?
- 1.3 Landownership and economic rent
- 1.4 Summary of chapters

2 Landownership and property

- 2.1 Introduction
- 2.2 Landownership: origins of the theory and forms
- 2.3 Landownership as freedom: secure title and economic growth
- 2.4 Landownership as theft: power and economic rent
- 2.5 Hypothesis: property is liberty, property is theft
- 2.6 Responses to the ownership paradox
- 2.7 Conclusion

3 The missing factor: land in production and distribution

- 3.1 Introduction
- 3.2 Classical political economy: land and economic rent
- 3.3 Land tax or separation as a solution to the problem of economic rent
- 3.4 Neoclassical economics and the conflation of land with capital
- 3.5 Problems with the neoclassical account: fundamental differences between land and capital
- 3.6 Political reasons for the disappearance of land from economic theory
- 3.7 Land and socialism
- 3.8 Consequences of the conflation of land and capital today
- 3.9 Conclusion

4 Land for housing: land economics in the modern era

- 4.1 Introduction
- 4.2 The Industrial Revolution and the growth of cities

- 4.3 1900–1970: world wars and the golden age of capitalism
- 4.4 1970 onwards: the emergence of ‘residential capitalism’
- 4.5 The new political economy of housing
- 4.6 Conclusion

5 The financialisation of land and housing

- 5.1 Introduction
- 5.2 House and land prices, income and bank credit
- 5.3 Mortgage finance, the ‘lifecycle’ model and the role of collateral
- 5.4 The history of mortgage and real estate finance in the UK
- 5.5 Macroeconomic effects of the liberalisation of mortgage credit
- 5.6 The property–credit nexus and financial fragility
- 5.7 Conclusion

6 Land, wealth and inequality

- 6.1 Introduction
- 6.2 Trends in economic inequality
- 6.3 Traditional explanations for increasing inequality
- 6.4 The role of land and economic rent in increasing inequality
- 6.5 Why inequality matters
- 6.6 Conclusion

7 Putting land back into economics and policy

- 7.1 Introduction
- 7.2 Ownership
- 7.3 Tax reform
- 7.4 Financial reform
- 7.5 Reforms to tenure
- 7.6 Planning reform
- 7.7 Changes to economics and national accounting
- 7.8 Conclusion

Bibliography

Index