

CONTENTS

List of Tables
List of Figures
Preface

1. Introduction: What Is Satisfaction?

Why Study Satisfaction in a Consumer Context?
 The Consumer's Perspective
 The Firm's Perspective
 The Industry Perspective
 The Societal Perspective
A Diversity of Satisfaction Definitions
 Satisfaction: A Formal Definition
 What About Dissatisfaction?
Vertical and Horizontal Distinctions
 Vertical Distinctions
 Horizontal Distinctions
 Do Firms Agree on Satisfaction as a Corporate Goal?
Consumer Satisfaction Compared to Satisfaction in Other Domains
Satisfaction Compared to Related Concepts
 A First-Time Consumer
 Repeat Purchasing, Consumption, or Patronization
 A Note on the “Nonprocessing” of Satisfaction
The Structure of This Book
 The Essentials of the Satisfaction Response
 Comparison Operators
 Integrative Psychological Processes
 Consequences of Satisfaction
Glossary
Notes
Bibliography

PART I. BASIC SATISFACTION MECHANISMS

2. The Performance of Attributes, Features, and Dimensions

Traditional Satisfaction Analysis
 Descriptive Statistics
 Importance-Performance Analysis
 Regression Analysis
 A Fundamental Shortcoming of Performance Analysis
Determining and Measuring Feature Performance

Satisfaction Drivers Versus Choice Criteria

Levels of Feature Abstraction

What Features?

Consumer-Generated Lists

Scaling Performance

Feature or Attribute Importance>

Alternative Measures of Importance for Satisfaction

Importance-Performance Analysis Revisited

Conclusion

Notes

Bibliography

3. Expectations and Related Comparative Standards

What is an Expectation?

More on Varieties of Expectations and Performance Referents

Anticipations as Expectations: Affective Expectations

Expectations of What?

Expectation Referents Categorized by Level of Desire

Referents Categorized by Level of Abstraction

Referents Categorized by Focal Comparison Object

An Applied Example

The “Best” of the Expectation-Based Comparative Referents

Sources of Referents and Reasons for the Level of Abstraction

External Sources

Internal Sources

Measuring Expectations: How and When

Predictive Expectations

Examples of Measures

Measuring Ideal, Should, and Desired Expectations

Practical Issues in the Measurement of Multiple Standards

Measuring Expectations After the Fact: Retrospective Expectations

Updating Expectations During Consumption

The Function of Expectations in Satisfaction Formation

Expectations as Assimilation Agents

Expectations as Contrast Agents

Conclusion

Notes

Bibliography

4. The Expectancy Disconfirmation Model of Satisfaction

Discrepancy Models of Satisfaction

The Consumer Behavior Approach

Shortcomings of Assimilation Versus Contrast Interpretations

- Disconfirmation Elaborated
- Objective Versus Subjective Disconfirmation
- Predicting Satisfaction: Calculated or Subjective Disconfirmation?
- Expectation and Disconfirmation as Proxies for Assimilation and Contrast
- What Does This Imply for Managerial Strategy?
- The Role of Confirmation
- The Role of Extremes of Disconfirmation
- Surprise and Disconfirmation in the Consumption Response
- The Relative Influences of Expectation or Disconfirmation: When Would one Dominate the Other?
 - When Expectations Dominate
 - When Disconfirmation Dominates
 - Conditions Favoring Strong Disconfirmation Effects
- Evidence For The Expectancy Disconfirmation Model
- Performance Influences In The Expectancy Disconfirmation Model
- Model Variations
 - Sample Versus Individual Influences
 - Other Disconfirmable Comparative Referents
- Conclusion
- Notes
- Bibliography

PART II. ALTERNATIVE AND SUPPLEMENTARY COMPARATIVE OPERATORS

5. Need Fulfillment in a Consumer Satisfaction Context

- Basics of Need
 - Restoration and Enhancement
 - Reinforcement
- Needs in the Satisfaction Process
 - Two Popular Need Satisfaction Models
 - Marketing Efforts to Apply Two-Factor Theory
 - Need Gratification Theory Elaborated
- A Consumer Perspective on Need Satisfaction Theory
 - Descriptive and Correlational Data
 - The Kano Approach to Satisfiers and Dissatisfiers
- Practical Implications of the Need Satisfaction Perspective
 - Application Implications
 - Measurement and Analysis
- Conclusion
- Notes
- Bibliography

6. Quality: The Object of Desire

- Technological Referents: The Historical Approach

Technical Comparisons

Consumer Perceptions of Quality

Quality Abstractions from the Consumer's Perspective

Single-Stimulus Definitions

Dual-Stimulus Definitions

Ideals as the Quality Standard

Use of Excellence as the Quality Standard: SERVQUAL Revisited

Quality Response Functions

Are Importances Useful in a Quality Model?

Measuring Quality as an Encounter or Global Concept

Quality Measurement at the Encounter Level

Quality Measurement at the Global Level

Quality and Satisfaction: Similarities and Differences

Conceptual Differences

Distinguishing Short-Term and Long-Term Quality and Satisfaction Effects

Tests of Frameworks Linking Quality and Satisfaction

An "Encounter Quality Influences Satisfaction" Model

Satisfaction-Specific and Quality-Specific Attributes

The Model

Affective Quality: New Directions for Services

Conclusion

Notes

Bibliography

7. The Many Varieties of Value in the Consumption Experience

Axiology: The Study of Values

Self-Oriented Values

Other-Oriented Values

Renditions of Value as Pre-and Postconsumption Events

Single-Stimulus Definitions of Value in Consumption

Dual-Stimulus Definitions of Value in Consumption

Proposed and Actual Model Tests Containing Quality and Value: What can be Learned?

Value as a Satisfaction-Like Postpurchase Comparison

What, Now, Is Value?

What, Now, Is the Role of Value in Satisfaction (or Vice Versa)?

Measuring Consumer Values

What of Value in Marketing Strategy?

Conclusion

Notes

Bibliography

8. Equity: How Consumers Interpret Fairness

Equity: What It is