
CONTENTS

FOREWORD by Sonia Wild Bićanić viii

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS xii

INTRODUCTION: BETWEEN THE HILLS AND THE RIVER xv

First Impressions (xv); Origins of the City (xviii); "Reliquiae Reliquiarum" and the "Thousand-Year Dream of Statehood" (xx); A Much-Sung About City (xxiii)

PART ONE

CANNON BALLS, CHURCH BELLS AND A BLOODY BRIDGE: THE CITY'S BEGINNINGS 1

Gradec: Lotrščak Tower (1); St. Mark's Church and Square (5); The Jesuit Monastery (11); The Convent of the Poor Clares, now the Museum of the City of Zagreb (13); Baroque Palaces (14); Pavao Ritter Vitezović (15); Kamenita Vrata, the Stone Gate (17); Medveščak: the Border between Gradec and Kaptol (18); Bad Neighbours: Conflict between Gradec and Kaptol (19); Kaptol (20); The Cathedral (25)

PART TWO

COFFEE, CAKE AND WALTZING TO NATIONHOOD: THE NINETEENTH CENTURY 29

The Lower Town and Jelačić Square (29); The Growth of the Lower Town (30); The Influence of Vienna on Zagreb Cultural Life in the Nineteenth Century (35); National Revival (37); Theatre in the Period of National Revival (41); The Illyrian Movement (44); The Role of Dancing in the Spread of Illyrian Ideas (50); 1848 and Ban Josip Jelačić (54); Consolidation of the Intellectual Middle Class: the Role of Ivan Mažuranić, Bishop Strossmayer and August Šenoa (56); Ivan Mažuranić (59); Bishop Josip Juraj Strossmayer; August Šenoa (63)

PART THREE

GRAVES, WINE AND POETS: MODERNIZATION AND
THE FIRST YUGOSLAVIA 71

Political and Social Context 1903-1918 (71); Architecture and the Visual Arts: Painting and Sculpture (74); Ivan Meštrović (76); Architecture: Hermann Bollé and the "Historical Style" (81); Viktor Kovačić and "Secessionism" (82); Mirogoj and Café Life (84); Mirogoj Cemetery (87); Bohemian Life (90); Antun Gústav Matoš (93); Augustin Tin Ujević (97); Marija Jurić Zagorka (99); The First World War, the Croatian God Mars and Miroslav Krleža (102); Political Background 1918-1939: the First Yugoslavia (107); Music and Dancing as the Shadows Gather: Social Conditions, Film, Music and Theatre 1918-39 (110); Early Film (112); Music (113); Theatre (116); Cabaret (118); The Jewish Community in Zagreb (122)

PART FOUR

FROM WAR TO WAR, ENDS, BEGINNINGS AND THE SECOND YUGOSLAVIA, 1945-2000 127

The Saga of King Tomislav's Arrival at Zagreb Station (127); Zagreb in the Second World War (131); The Expanding City (136); Brotherhood, Unity and a Bright Future for All (138); Fostering Folklore (141); Međunarodna Smotra Folklore: the International Folklore Festival (143); Naive Art (145); Brotherhood and Unity in the School Curriculum (145); Vesna Parun (148); Towards New Horizons: Ranko Marinković, Antun Šoljan, Slobodan Novak (150); Ranko Marinković (151); Antun Šoljan (153); Slobodan Novak (155); The Edifice Begins to Crack: Language Agreements and Disagreements (156); The "Praxis" Group of Philosophers (159); The "Croatian Spring" (160); The Politics of Cinema (161); The Zagreb School of Animated Film (164); Theatreland (166); The Visual Arts (168); The Modern Gallery (170); Experimentation (171); The Museum of Contemporary Art (Muzej suvremene umjetnosti) (171); Gliptoteka (173); The Museum of Arts and Crafts (Muzej za umjetnost i obrt) (174); The Mimara Museum (175); The Klović Palace Gallery (Galerija Klovićevi dvori) (176); A Temple and a Palace of Music: the Croatian Music Institute (177); The Vatroslav Lisinski Concert Hall (179); The Zagreb Musical Biennale (179); Popular Music: The "New Wave" (180); Physical Changes (181); New Perspectives: a Hint of Feminism and New Women's Voices: Irena Vrkljan, Slavenka Drakulić, Dubravka Ugrešić (183); Slavenka Drakulić (184); Dubravka Ugrešić: Early Works (186); Sport: Football as a Prelude to War (187)

PART FIVE

INTO THE NEW MILLENNIUM: THE INDEPENDENT REPUBLIC OF CROATIA 191

Independence (191); Domovinski Rat (The Homeland War) (192); The Mobilization of Folk Culture (194); “Turbo-Folk” (198); Distortions and Provocations of the Tadjman Years: Renaming of Streets (201); Tadjman and Football (203); Dissenting Voices: Radio 101 (204); The “Zagreb Witches” (204); Dubravka Ugrešić (206); Language: the New Purism (207); The Arts: New Trends—Literature (210); FAK (212);
Modern Film (213); Contemporary Theatre (214); Visual Arts (215); Music and Festivals (216); Zagreb’s Expansion (216); The New National and University Library (219); The New Museum of Contemporary Art (220); Jarun and Bundek (221); Contemporary Café Culture:
Pedestrian Precincts, Tkalčićeva, Jelačić Square (222); Final Reflections in the Garden of the Archaeological Museum (223)

FURTHER READING 227

INDEX OF LITERARY & HISTORICAL NAMES 229

INDEX OF PLACES & LANDMARKS 233