

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction Tactical Media as Virtuosoic Performance	1
1. Border Hacks Electronic Civil Disobedience and the Politics of Immigration	31
2. Virtual War Information Visualization and Persuasive Gaming	65
3. Speculative Capital Black Shoals and the Visualizing of Finance	109
Notes	153
Index	187

Katherine Hayles has been a great supporter of my work, and I can't begin to express my gratitude toward a complete acknowledgment of all that is owed. I also hugely indebted to Mark Poster and Doug Armstrong both for championing this book for the series and keeping an eye on its progress. For more than a decade, I have worked under the generous and unwavering influence of Alan Liu as he was writing his magisterial study of knowledge work, The Laws of Cool. It goes without saying that Alan continues to give voice to many of my ideas and helps me bring them into being. So, too, Russell Sandvick has been collaborator and combatant; without his input this book would have taken a very different form indeed.

Thanks to the following for contributions that range from careful readings to general advice and reading suggestions: Carl Degleron Jones, Philip Armstrong, Julian Stallabrass, Karen Steigman, Jennifer Jones,